

Chinese Mourn Great Loss

TOKYO (AP) — Chou En-lai, premier of the People's Republic of China since its creation in 1949 and a leading force for moderation and detente with the United States, died of cancer Thursday in Peking, the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua announced. He was 78.

The Chinese leadership, in its eulogy, called Chou "the great fighter of the Chinese people" and termed his death "a gigantic loss."

In a message of condolence President Ford said in Washington that Chou "has left his imprint not only on the history of modern China, but also on the world scene."

The official Chinese obituary notice did not raise the question of Chou's successor, but according to reports in Washington recent visitors to China were told by Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung that the job would go to First Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, 71.

A Chou protégé, Teng has filled the premier's job during Chou's long fatal illness. He is considered a strong supporter of increased contacts with the United States, and U.S. officials said Chou's death was not expected to affect efforts to improve relations between the two countries.

Another potential leader is Wang Hung-wen, at 39 the vice chairman and boy wonder of the party. The listing of members of the funeral committee ranked Wang in second place behind Chairman Mao — who is 82 — while Teng was in fourth place after Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying.

In his condolences to the government and people of China, President Ford declared that Chou "will be long remembered as a remarkable leader."

The President expressed confidence that U.S.-Chinese relationships "will continue to develop on the foundation of understanding and cooperation," which he said Chou helped to establish.

A descendant of Mandarin forebears who turned Communist revolutionary in his youth, Chou had been confined to a hospital for much of the time since 1972 when he was reported stricken with a heart ailment.

Hsinhua said Chou died at 9:57 a.m. Thursday — 8:59 p.m. CST Wednesday. The announcement said:

"The Central Committee of the Communist party of China, the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress and the State Council of the People's Republic of China announce with extreme grief Comrade Chou En-lai, member of the C.P.C. Central Committee, member of the Political Bureau of the C.P.C. Central Committee, member of the standing committee of the Political Bureau of the C.P.C. Central Committee, vice-chairman of the C.P.C. Central Committee, premier of the State Council of the People's Republic of China and chairman of the National Committee of the Chinese people's political consultative conference, died of cancer at 09:57 hours on January 8, 1976 in Peking at the age of 78."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, in Washington, responded to the death by saying, "I admired Chou En-lai very much."

Former President Richard M. Nixon said in San Clemente, Calif. that Chou's "legacy will be that he helped end the darkness."

"Only a handful of men in the 20th century will match Premier Chou's impact on world history."

Aside from Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung, Chou was the Chinese figure best known to the outside world. Millions of Americans saw him on live television during Nixon's week-long visit to China in February 1972.

It was Chou, in seemingly tireless negotiations with Kissinger, who brought about the historic about-face in Chinese policy which made the visit and improved Chinese-American relations possible. Suavely handsome and boundlessly energetic, Chou's ability to take the middle road ensured his survival in the often turbulent world of Chinese Communist politics. From the 1930s he identified himself with Mao and for years was content to be No. 3 in the Communist hierarchy.

But when other leaders — President Liu Shao-chi and Defense Minister Lin Biao — fell by the wayside during the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution and its aftermath, Chou emerged as No. 2.

Throughout the cultural purge, which convulsed the party and administration, he labored as mediator while invoking the authority of Mao. Besides being premier, he was the first vice chairman of the party, a vice chairman of its military commission and a member of the Politburo standing committee.

Throughout his illness Chou continued to interest himself in political affairs. He met important foreign visitors in his hospital suite and kept a finger on the pulse of Chinese life. But in September 1975, his doctors forbade him even the brief interviews he had had in the past. On his eighth Peking visit in October 1975, Kissinger sent him flowers and got back a personal note but there was no meeting.

In one of his last, and perhaps one of his most significant contributions to the Communist state, Chou restored vigor and substance to the administration in January 1975.

He presided over a national People's Congress session which filled in many government gaps left by the cultural purge and laid down the blueprint for a massive new economic effort aimed at bringing China into the front rank of industrial nations by the end of the century.

Though he had been removed by illness from active management of Chinese affairs, he could be content to know that a full team, led by Teng, an old friend and protégé, was in charge.

One of Chou's boldest acts was to raise Teng from disgrace in 1973 and turn over to him the reins of government. A short tough man exuding cheerfulness and wit, Teng could be counted on to pursue Chou's moderate policies.

It was Teng who negotiated with Kissinger in 1974 and again in 1975 and met with President Ford, Nixon's successor, in the closing weeks of 1975.

Chou's wife, Teng Ying-chao, also was active politically, chiefly in the women's movement. They shared the same prison as youngsters in 1919 and went together to France to study. They were married in 1925 and their only child died in infancy.

PREMIER DIES... Chou En-lai.

SEC Investigates N.Y.C. Note Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission announced Thursday it has launched a formal investigation of possible securities law violations in connection with sales of New York City notes and bonds.

The SEC stressed that initiation of the investigation on Monday was not a sign that any violations had in fact occurred. But the probe was apparently at least in part a response to allegations of massive fraud in the dispensing of information to investors when New York City securities were sold to the public.

Sen. James L. Buckley, Con.-R.-N.Y., asked the White House in October to investigate the dealings. He said the allegations of massive fraud were contained in a memorandum prepared by Jeremiah B. McKenna, counsel for the New York State Select Committee on Crime.

McKenna said city officials inflated by hundreds of millions of dollars estimates of the revenues available to pay off city obligations, Buckley reported.

The city eventually had to reorganize its finances last year while on the brink of default. The effort to stave off default included imposition of a moratorium forcing holders of $1.6 billion in New York City bonds to postpone their right to redeem bonds when the securities came due.

The SEC and the Justice Department both launched preliminary investigations late last year. But a Justice Department spokesman said material gathered by the U.S. attorney for the Manhattan district has been forwarded to the SEC, which now has full control over the investigation.

The SEC's two-page announcement of the formal investigation contained no clues on what specific charges may be included or what information prompted the commission's action.

Initiation of a formal investigation gives the SEC staff the power to require testimony from possible sources.

Such investigations are not normally announced and are closed without notice whenever no likely violations are found.

The commission said it announced the New York City investigation "to minimize any general adverse impact upon the securities markets that might result from disclosure of the investigation in an inaccurate or improper manner."

Although the cities and other municipalities are not required, as are publicly held companies, to file registration statements with the commission when they sell securities to the public, the SEC still has some authority in the area.

Brokers and dealers, for example, are registered with the commission. And if the SEC finds violations of the laws it administers, it can take civil action against individuals or entities involved and refer possible criminal action to the Justice Department. The city and its officials also are liable to legal complaints, the commission said.

It said that along with the investigation of possible wrongdoing, it will examine any additional legislation or regulations needed in the area.

The commission announcement was devoid of any details on where the investigation was headed or what possible specific violations might be involved. But it did say one factor involved in the investigation would be an effort to determine what additional laws and regulations might be necessary to protect investors in municipal securities in the future.

HOPPES... charged in estranged wife's death

Hoppes Faces Charge Of First Degree Murder

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A charge of first degree murder was filed Thursday against Tom Hoppes, 23, of 1136 Oak, in connection with the death of his estranged wife.

Hoppes appeared before Lancaster County Judge Jeffrey Chevront about 4:30 p.m., dressed in a red flannel shirt, blue jeans and scuffed brown boots for the brief proceedings.

A preliminary hearing in the case was set for Jan. 23. Chevront refused a request by Hoppes' attorney, Art Langvardt, to set bond for Hoppes.

Hoppes, who displayed little expression during the proceedings, was returned to jail.

The filing of charges had been set for the morning. Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners said it was postponed because Hoppes and his attorneys wanted to consult further with his office.

Lahners Thursday declined to elaborate on autopsy findings that gave asphyxiation as the cause of the woman's death. Lahners said he did not feel he could answer that question at this stage of the criminal process.

Lahners did, however, reveal that the only visible signs of injury on the body of the 24-year-old custodian were small bruises and abrasions on her face.

Ann Hoppes body was found Wednesday afternoon beneath a foot of ice on Pawnee Lake after one of her husband's attorneys led authorities to a bridge at the northwest corner of the lake.

Her body weighted down with a tow chain and a wheel rim, was recovered by scuba divers from the Lincoln Fire Department after a hole was sawn in the ice. The body was found in eight feet of water under the bridge.

She disappeared from her job at the University of Nebraska's Fairfield Hall the night of Dec. 30. Articles had been knocked from a desk, a mop and bucket were still standing in the office and smudges were found on a wall.

Thursday, however, Lahners dodged questions on whether the smudges had proved to be blood under laboratory analysis. He finally said he believed he should not answer the question at this stage in the criminal process.

Ann Hoppes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hammond of rural Fremont. Described as an average student, she graduated from Fremont High School in 1969. She was active in Thespians, Art Club, Y-Teens and Spanish Club.

She had been separated from her husband, who was a groundskeeper at the UNL campus for at least a month, according to police.

Budget Worries Remain, State Funds Low

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The state's general fund balance plummeted to $3.6 million Thursday, reminding state officials and the public that the state's budget worries did not end with the adjournment of a special legislative session in November.

A $2.5 million payroll for state employees must go out on Jan. 12, raising questions about the state's ability to meet it.

State Accountant George Shute said, after consulting with the Revenue Department about management of its tax refund account, that it appears the state will "squeak" through January without dipping into the red.

"It looks like we'll make it through January," Shute said in answer to questions from The Star. All major payments for the month have been made.

Last fall when talk of a cash flow crisis within state government began circulating, legislative and executive fiscal experts agreed January would see the treasury undergo its sharpest drain.

In past years, the treasury balance has ranged as high as $80 million.

January's problem was compounded by State Treasurer Frank Marsh's decision to make $7.1 million in payments to cities and counties on Jan. 3 — the first day the payments could be made — instead of Jan. 15 — the last day he could make the payments.

Marsh said, "We didn't see any problem at the time."

He said his office coordinated its efforts to schedule payments by communicating with the State Department of Education about waiting to make a $5 million disbursement. In addition, Marsh said he foresaw a $10.6 million ending balance for the month.

We knew Tuesday there was something doing in the Revenue Department's income tax refunds," he said. "But my sheets don't reflect that."

Since the special legislative session met to deal with the cash flow crisis, Marsh said his office has been calling different agencies about the timing of upcoming payments.

We think we're communicating," he said. "We need some central place for funneling this information."

We've got some loose ends we need to wrap," Marsh concluded.

Shute said the only unknown variable in the payment schedule for the balance of January is the amount of voucher payments. However, he said these usually are not of a magnitude which could seriously affect the situation.

The State Board of Equalization has increased the individual and corporate income tax rates for 1976 to help offset the cash flow crisis. However, due to delays before income withholdings are forwarded to the state treasury by employers, the impact of the higher rates will not be felt for several weeks.

The Legislature in its special session acted to alleviate the cash flow problem by cutting state spending, allowing flexibility in the scheduling of payments and adjusting the cash reserve the state must have on hand.

NU Fieldhouse Funds Get Tentative Approval

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Pending further justification by the University of Nebraska, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee has tentatively approved nearly $600,000 in tax funding to operate the new sports center in Lincoln.

LB690, the higher education appropriations bill contains a $586,185 general fund appropriation for the fieldhouse.

The bill also includes continued 1976-77 state tax support for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) project at a level of $126,155.

reduced to $100,000 by Gov. J. James Exon.

Neither the fieldhouse nor the SUN appropriation for fiscal 1976-77 has been discussed in detail by the committee.

Both were included in a $5.4 million addition to NU's budget base approved by the committee in a single motion last month.

Discussion Said Purpose
Detailed discussion of those figures, and others, will be "the purpose of the hearings," Marvel said.

"I think the university should develop a plan to use the fieldhouse for more than athletic events."

"It needs to generate some income of its own to operate the facility. I think that was meant to happen when the original plan for the fieldhouse was proposed."

As an entirely new project its operating costs need to be fully justified along with all other new projects. Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said.

Simpson is a member of the appropriations unit.

'Not Objecting Now'
I am not objecting to the figure as of now," he said. "I want to see the fieldhouse operating with all types of events."

But the university should be prepared to come in and justify the figure.

Both the fieldhouse and SUN figures represent NU's budget requests. Other funds would bring the SUN total budget to $443,478 and the sports center operations figure to $636,185.

NU is hoping to open the sports center for basketball in February or March.

SUN is a multi-media educational program for off-campus students.

Those figures are tentative. Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings stressed Thursday.

"We will pursue these items during the university's public hearing" before the committee.

'Prepare To Defend'
"They should be prepared to vigorously defend those figures," Marvel said.

The 1975-76 budget bill included a $200,000 general fund appropriation to operate the fieldhouse during a portion of the current fiscal year.

A $125,000 state tax item for SUN was approved by the 1975 Legislature, but

Thurs-day attorneys and witnesses representing the City of Lincoln introduced evidence based on salaries and employment conditions in 14 cities of comparable size in a seven-state area.

Testifying in behalf of the city, Dr. Jerome F. Sherman, assistant professor in the University of Nebraska Finance Department, said he tried to be as unbiased and objective as possible in preparing his statistics.

Sherman presented four arrays, each consisting of salary

statistics from eight cities in the region as well as Lincoln.

The array he described as "most realistic" included Davenport, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Sioux City, Iowa, Springfield and St. Joseph, Mo. and Topeka, Kan.

Based on those figures, Sherman said Lincoln needed a 6.4 to 8.4 pay increase to bring its lowest paid firefighters in line with those of other cities, and a 1.4 to 3.7 hike to equalize wages of its highest paid firefighters.

His survey of salaries was as of Sept. 11, 1975, the date Lincoln firefighters filed the petition with the Court of Industrial Relations.

In his testimony for the city, Mike Merwick, administrative assistant to the mayor and a former fireman, presented statistics on fire departments, workload and conditions in the 14 cities, including such information as the number of fire stations, rescue squad runs, fire alarms, injuries and false alarms.

Merwick declined to describe any of the data as most important or relevant to the case and urged Judge Rudolph to take all of it into consideration before making a decision.

Chinese Mourn Great Loss

Industrial Relations Court Studying Firefighters' Pay

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln firefighters will know in about 60 days whether the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations will order the city of Lincoln to grant them a pay raise of more than 10%.

The Court of Industrial Relations convened Thursday to establish wages and employment conditions for Lincoln firefighters because they rejected the city's pay offer in a vote last August.

The City Council had granted city employees a 10% increase.

In testimony before Judge Wallace M. Rudolph, the expert witness for the firefighters, James J. Kilgallon of a Washington, D.C. consulting firm, compared salaries and working conditions of Lincoln firefighters to those in Omaha and Grand Island.

Based on his figures, Kilgallon testified that Lincoln firefighters "need about a 13% increase" to restore a relative pay balance that existed among the three Nebraska fire departments in 1972.

Since 1972, he said, Lincoln firefighters have actually seen their wages deteriorate because of the rising cost of living.

Based on salary proposals listed in the city's budget for fiscal 1975-76, a retroactive 3% increase in firefighters' salaries would cost Lincoln taxpayers an additional $94,000.

About a year ago, the Court of Industrial Relations ordered the City of Omaha to grant its uniformed firemen a 10.2% pay raise, across the board. Omaha had offered the firefighters 8.2%.

More important than the pay increase, however, was the precedent. The industrial court had never before gone outside Nebraska for comparative data on wages, hours and working conditions to resolve a public worker pay dispute.

Thursday, attorneys and witnesses representing the City of Lincoln introduced evidence based on salaries and employment conditions in 14 cities of comparable size in a seven-state area.

Testifying in behalf of the city, Dr. Jerome F. Sherman, assistant professor in the University of Nebraska Finance Department, said he tried to be as "unbiased" and "objective" as possible in preparing his statistics.

Sherman presented four arrays, each consisting of salary

statistics from eight cities in the region, as well as Lincoln.

The array he described as "most realistic" included Davenport, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Sioux City, Iowa; Springfield and St. Joseph, Mo.; and Topeka, Kan. Based on those figures, Sherman said Lincoln needed a 6.4 to 8.4% pay increase to bring its lowest paid firefighters in line with those of other cities, and a 1.4 to 3.7% hike to equalize wages of its highest paid firefighters.

His survey of salaries was as of Sept. 11, 1975, the date Lincoln firefighters filed the petition with the Court of Industrial Relations.

In his testimony for the city, Mike Merwick, administrative assistant to the mayor and a former fireman, presented statistics on fire departments' workload and conditions in the 14 cities, including such information as the number of fire stations, rescue squad runs, fire alarms, injuries and false alarms.

Merwick declined to describe any of the data as most important or relevant to the case and urged Judge Rudolph to take all of it into consideration before making a decision.

NU Fieldhouse Funds Get Tentative Approval

By DON WALTON

Pending further justification by the University of Nebraska, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee has tentatively approved nearly $600,000 in tax funding to operate the new sports center in Lincoln.

LB690, the higher education appropriations bill, contains a $586,185 general fund appropriation for the fieldhouse.

The bill also includes continued 1976-77 state tax support for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) project at a level of $126,155.

Legislature stories on Page 12

"Those figures are tentative," Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings stressed Thursday.

"We will pursue these items during the university's public hearing" before the committee.

'Prepare To Defend'
"They should be prepared to vigorously defend those figures," Marvel said.

The 1975-76 budget bill included a $200,000 general fund appropriation to operate the fieldhouse during a portion of the current fiscal year.

A $125,000 state tax item for SUN was approved by the 1975 Legislature, but Aid Cut To Nations Opposing U.S.

The New York Times

Washington — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has formally initiated a policy of singling out for cutback in American aid those nations that have sided against the United States in votes in the United Nations. In some cases, the cutbacks involve food and humanitarian relief.

According to state department officials, Kissinger has already postponed agreements on development aid to Tanzania and Guyana because of their votes in the United Nations General Assembly to condemn Zionism and to oppose the administration's position on Korea.

Other nations such as Malawi and Ivory Coast which supported administrative positions in the United Nations will be given additional aid.

The new policy was described in both negative and positive terms.

The official who disclosed this information in The Times called the policy no more than a "zap list" to punish small countries and do nothing about others such as Egypt that were also voting against the United States.

State Department officials who confirmed the policy spoke of it as simply a way of showing developing nations that their behavior in international organizations would affect their direct relations with the United States.

As one official put it, "If bilateral concerns aren't overriding — like Middle East peace talks — we have to do something tangible to them to show that their opposition to us is not cost-free."

Congress appears to be divided on this issue. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has issued a report specifically prohibiting the politicizing of economic aid. The House International Relations Committee passed a resolution that, in effect, endorsed some kind of get-tough approach after the United Nations vote condemning Zionism as a form of racism.

Some of the officials also acknowledged that.

— High officials of the Agency for International Development who are responsible for carrying-out development programs have not even been informed of the new policy.

— Nations whose aid programs have been delayed or cancelled are not explicitly being told why, although as one official said, "When our ambassador comes to them and complains about their votes in the U.N., and a few weeks later an aid transaction falls through, they get the picture."

In the new year, the policy will be carried out in a more systematic and wide-ranging way, using all available aid programs — grant military aid, military credit sales, grant food aid, credit food sales, Export-Import Bank loans, development and humanitarian relief assistance — but relying initially and mainly on diplomatic protests.

State Department officials traced the origins of the new policy to three factors: one was the appointment of Daniel P. Moynihan as representative to the United Nations. Moynihan came to this position on the heels of an article in Commentary magazine calling for a strategy of "raising hell" in the United Nations.

A second was Kissinger's long-held belief that when nations acted against important interests of the United States on issues that were extraneous to their own interests, the administration should take a stern line.

The third factor was the United Nations vote condemning Zionism as a form of racism which caused a number of congressmen to press for cutting off American contributions to the United Nations and to many of its member states.

State Department officials flatly reject the charge that they have produced a "zap list" and say that their policy has only a short-run objective. They said that an office has been set up in the State Department to monitor and analyze United Nations votes.

Those officials acknowledged that in most cases only small developing nations that could do little to the United States in return are chosen for action. Such nations include: Cameroon, Cyprus, Benin, Niger, Senegal, Burundi, Chad, and Malta. But the analyses also select nations like India, Bangladesh, and Nigeria for action.

The officials also explained that in most of these cases, it is a difficult choice to actually cut off economic aid, because it would really be the people of these countries who would suffer most.

Angola Withdrawal Unofficial

Washington (UPI) — The White House said Thursday it has received "no official word" to confirm reports that South Africa will withdraw its troops from Angola — a move that could strengthen U.S. efforts to get the Soviets and Cubans out as well.

"We have received no official word that South Africa is withdrawing troops" from involvement in the Angolan civil war, White House press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters at a news briefing.

Asked whether, official word aside, the United States might have got such information through informal diplomatic or intelligence channels, Nessen declined to go beyond his original statement.

Earlier Thursday, authoritative State Department sources said South Africa had informed the United States it might withdraw its estimated 1,200 troops from the Angolan fighting within the next 48 hours.

These sources said the administration had been hoping South Africa would do just that, because the gesture would strengthen Washington's efforts to stir up pressure among African nations for a withdrawal of an estimated 400 Soviet advisers and about 7,500 Cuban troops from Angola.

"What we favor," Nessen said, "is withdrawal of all foreign elements."

At the State Department, spokesman Robert Funseth said, "We hope all will get out, and the sooner the better."

But asked about the reports of an imminent South African withdrawal, Funseth said, "South Africa has not informed us of its intentions."

The Organization of African Unity convened an emergency session on the Angolan situation Thursday in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, at the foreign minister level.

Despite intensive U.S. diplomatic efforts, a number of African states have already recognized the Angolan faction supported by Soviets as the legitimate government of the West African state.

Many African leaders seem more concerned over South African involvement than Soviet or Cuban, and the OAU meeting was expected to condemn South African participation explicitly. It might also urge withdrawal of all foreign forces generally, but probably will not mention the Soviets or Cubans by name.

News Leak Sought

Washington — The Ford administration and the CIA are trying informally to find out who leaked information that the United States planned to funnel money to Italian political parties, according to sources familiar with the events. The sources stressed that there was no intention to use the FBI or other agencies to make inquiries.

Efforts Continue

Belfast — The British government pressed ahead Thursday with its parallel efforts to control violence in Northern Ireland and, at the same time, to devise a longer-range political situation to the problems of the troubled province. Early Thursday, the first elements of Special Air Service troops — Britain's toughest and most sophisticated anti-guerrilla unit — moved into Northern Ireland and headed for South Armagh, a rustic area straddling the Irish border. It has served as a staging ground and sanctuary for terrorists from the Irish Republican Army's provisional wing.

Payments Attacked

Rome — Italy's Communist Party, the second largest political party in the country, Thursday attacked reported payments by the CIA to non-Communist politicians here as "brutal interference in our domestic affairs."

The party's newspaper, L'Unita, said the money had failed to stop the advance of Italy's Communists, but succeeded in feeding "bad government and corruption" and in aggravating "the general crisis."

Inquiry Inadequate

Washington (Washington Star) — After conducting secret interviews with more than 20 witnesses during the last two months, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., is convinced the Warren Commission did not adequately investigate the "Cuban connection" which may hold the key to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"There is an awful lot that we know now that the Warren Commission did not know that would have changed the whole thrust of what they were trying to do," Schweiker said.

Plan Is 'Damaging'

Washington (Washington Star) — President Ford's campaign manager suggested Thursday that Ronald Reagan's plan to cut federal spending by $90 billion might throw old people "out in the snow."

Howard "Bo" Callaway said the plan would damage Reagan's chances of wrestling the Republican presidential nomination from Ford.

'Stiff Upper Lip' Really American

London (UPI) — The British Broadcasting Corp. is saying a graceful "thank you" this weekend to the United States for, of all things, the English language.

It may seem a bit in reverse, since English, after all, comes from England, but according to "A Common Tongue," a new BBC documentary, "It is the Americans who keep the language going and growing."

"We thought it was time, in this bicentennial year, to say 'thanks' for the linguistic debt we British owe to the United States."

"It's obvious once you start to do the research that more and more we're using your words and expressions," said Tony Cash, a trained linguist who wrote and produced the hour-long documentary being broadcast Saturday night.

"Without Americans we couldn't make it, or get by. We couldn't even keep a stiff upper lip — that's your expression, too."

Cash cites American business and technical dominance, the pervading influence of American movies, television shows, stage plays and novels for the ever-increasing influence of Americanisms.

But the program's main thrust is to trace the origins of American words and phrases in everyday use.

Phrases like "dead broke," "gilt edged," and "to get even," are attributed to Mark Twain. Jewish and German neighborhoods in New York provided other common phrases such as "now he tells us," "ouch," "so long," "you never had it so good."

The Spanish influence gave Americans "cafeteria," while the French contributed "depot" and "buccaneer."

Focusing on the remains of a western ghost town, Cash reminds viewers that the frontier produced phrases like "strike it rich," "pan out," "johnny come lately" and "whole hog."

Not every phrase has taken hold in England. The British don't call cops "fuzz," and still believe "junk" is something you throw away not buy from a pusher.

However, the English do deal with "hoodlums" and "racketeers," some are "well heeled," and they know that a "hatchet man" can "take you for a ride" — all words and phrases spread to the British Isles by American gangster films.

Payments Can Stop

Washington (AP) — New federal regulations that take effect in May will permit consumers who make credit purchases to stop payment on faulty merchandise, says Rep. Frank Annunzio, chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee.

New World Monetary System Agreed To

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The structure of a new world monetary system to replace one that has endured since World War II was agreed upon Thursday by 20 finance ministers as part of a comprehensive international financial package.

Meanwhile, a second eruption of anti-American violence outside the U.S. consulate Wednesday night in Kingston left one policeman dead and one critically injured.

The old monetary system broke down in 1971. U.S. officials said the new structure, replacing the one agreed upon at Bretton Woods, N.H., in 1944, will confirm the right of the United States to maintain the same flexible — or floating — value of the dollar that helped bring about a record trade surplus of more than $10 billion in 1975.

"The price of the dollar is the most important price in the United States as it relates to exports, jobs and our balance of payments," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said.

Simon also said other parts of the financial package would make more than $7 billion available to poor and underdeveloped countries in 1976 and beyond, to help them pay for the food, oil and other goods they need to import. But some other nations, including Italy, said the funds would not be sufficient.

The package, which includes more than a 33 per cent increase in lending authority by the International Monetary Fund, was reached at a meeting of the IMF's powerful interim committee here. Simon is the U.S. representative on the committee.

While Simon and other finance ministers met at the Pegasus Hotel in Kingston, the second serious outbreak of anti-American violence occurred at the U.S. Consulate about a half-mile away Wednesday night.

One Jamaican policeman standing guard in front of the consulate was shot and killed and a second critically injured by two gunmen who began shooting apparently without warning and then escaped.

Rock-throwing demonstrators protesting U.S. involvement in Angola pelted the consulate with rocks Wednesday, slightly injuring a Jamaican employee.

On the financial front, member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have prohibited use of their funds — a total of about $800 million — in IMF lending.

But a top official said that since the United States has agreed in principle to expand lending, then the OPEC nations should agree to put their currencies on equal status with the dollar and other world currencies for lending purposes.

"This isn't idle principal," the official said. "You can't operate this system... if certain groups of countries have special privileges."

The increased lending plan would make about $2 billion to $3 billion more available to poor and underdeveloped nations from regular IMF lending programs, the official said.

This would be a 50 per cent increase in the amount available under the initial step in IMF lending — called the first slice, where qualifications for obtaining loans are the most lenient.

Lending in the other three steps would be increased by 33%. These steps require more strict qualifying terms.

Pine Ridge, S.D. (AP) — Several members of the Wounded Knee Survivors Association will travel to Washington later this month to appeal for a special $3,000 payment to heirs of Indians killed in the 1890 Wounded Knee incident.

The Senate Judiciary Committee holds hearings Jan. 20 on a bill by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., to pay all descendants of the Wounded Knee victims $3,000. He estimated the total would be less than $600,000.

The Army last week issued a report on the deaths of 146 Indians on Dec. 29, 1890 and said it could not be considered a massacre.

100 Dead, 8 Kidnaped In Latest Beirut Strife

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's civil war, heated up by large-scale Palestinian involvement, left more than 100 persons dead and at least eight kidnaped Thursday, officials said.

A pall of black smoke hung over Beirut as hundreds of terrified residents fled from neighborhoods involved in house-to-house fighting.

The fierce new clashes spurred talk in Christian circles of partition — splitting Lebanon into separate Christian and Moslem states.

Syria reportedly has threatened to intervene and even annex Lebanon to prevent such a split. Israel has warned it would retaliate the minute Syria moved in militarily.

"Gunmen from both sides scream in agony as they are left to bleed to death because ambulances are turned back at gunpoint by both sides," a police spokesman said of the Beirut fighting.

Beirut Radio appealed urgently for blood donors throughout the day, while two hospitals were damaged by shelling.

A huge fire at a large refrigeration plant in the eastern industrial area of Beirut raged uncontrolled because firemen were unable to approach through the heavy fighting.

Beirut Radio appealed to the combatants to let the firemen through. The fire might spread to a neighboring bottled gas warehouse and set off an explosion that would wreck havoc to adjacent factories — "a disastrous blow to the national economy," the radio warned.

A score of smaller fires raged in other scattered points, most of them caused by heavy rocket and mortar fire.

The fiercest fighting raged for the second straight day between Palestinian guerrillas and Christian militiamen surrounding Palestinian refugee camps. The camps are located on high ground on the northeastern outskirts of the city.

The fighting around the camps at Tel Zaatar and Jisr el-Basha erupted Tuesday night after Christian militiamen refused to allow food convoys to reach the 27,000 refugees in and around the camps.

This led to the collapse of a shaky two-week Christmas holiday cease-fire. It also resulted in the most serious involvement to date by moderate Palestinian guerrillas in the 9-month-old civil war.

The fighting is over Moslem demands for political and economic reforms and Christian reluctance to grant them until the government clamps down on the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Palestinians, aided by left-wing Moslem Lebanese gunmen, were trying to punch through the Christian residential areas surrounding the two camps to break the food blockade.

The din of battle around the refugee camps is so great at times "you cannot hear yourself talk," said one combatant on the scene.

The most formidable weapon used by the Palestinians was a battery of anti-aircraft guns on high ground, with which they blasted Christian neighborhoods below.

The Christian militiamen retaliated with rocket, mortar and heavy machine gun fire. They also used five homemade armored cars in the fray.

The collapse of the cease-fire around Tel Zaatar spread to most other areas of Beirut by nightfall. Many of the sandbag street barricades and fortifications that had been dismantled in the last two weeks were hastily re-erected. Police reported heavy exchanges of fire in most Beirut areas where Christian and Moslem neighborhoods abut each other.

Manhunt Begins For Accountant

Grand Rapids, Mich (UPI) — Authorities investigating a multi-million-dollar payroll service swindle waded into a mountain of complex financial statements Thursday hoping to discover how the firm bilked about 600 Michigan businesses.

Police and federal agents pressed a nationwide manhunt for James R. Redican, 37, president of Computer Payroll & Accounting Services. Redican is accused of embezzling from the payrolls of client businesses.

Investigators from the Kent County prosecutor's office unlocked the doors at the firm's main office in suburban Kentwood and started a complicated review of the records. They were joined by a federal bankruptcy official.

"It will take a team of investigators some time to wade through all the books," said Deputy Prosecutor Donald Johnston. "We may never know, until we find th guy, exactly how much was taken."

Redican and his wife Gail closed the firm's main office Monday and left their ranch-style home on Lake Macatawa near Holland. Authorities said the couple is running from a warrant charging Redican with larceny by conversion.

There were reports Redican was headed for New York where, according a brother, he once ran a successful printing business and a wig boutique which reportedly went bankrupt.

Redican founded the accounting firm in 1972 using the name of his brother, Thomas Redican, presumably to avoid disclosure of the New York bankruptcy. He ran it with the help of another brother, Jack, of Lansing.

Thomas Redican, 42, an employee of a shipping company in Kailua, Hawaii, told UPI he did not know of his brother's business venture and did not give him permission to use his name.

"This comes as a hell of a surprise to me," Redican said. "I didn't even know he lived in Michigan. I haven't been in touch with him in years."

Redican said he last saw his brother James in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1966.

Johnston called the FBI into the investigation and asked the local U.S. attorney to issue a federal fugitive warrant for Redican. Police in several states and Canada were looking for the couple.

A complete list of small businesses victimized by the swindle has not been compiled.

Investigator: IRS Overreaction 'Free Pass' For Tax Evaders

Washington (UPI) — A House investigator said Thursday the Internal Revenue Service overreacted to criticism of its spy activities to the point it "may constitute a free pass" to tax evaders.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, chairman of the ways and means oversight subcommittee, said the IRS "overreacted" to news reports that its "Operation Leprechaun" spied on the sex and drinking habits of individuals.

IRS reactions to the disclosures also "have brought the collection of tax-related information to a virtual standstill, discouraged informants from imparting information on a paid or voluntary basis and demoralized the intelligence division — and may constitute a free pass to organized crime figures and others seeking to evade or avoid the payment of federal taxes," Vanik said.

His report said the IRS imposed rules "which will so inhibit intelligence gathering as to encourage tax evasion or avoidance by corrupt public officials, narcotics traffickers and other organized crime figures, certain wealthy individuals and others."

News reports last March disclosed existence of the operation, alleged to have gathered information on the sex and drinking habits of 30 prominent Floridians. The report also said media attention to the operation was "sensationalized."

Vanik's panel held a hearing two weeks later and IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander said the "aberration . . . got out of hand."

The report said Alexander and other IRS officials made statements to Congress and the public "which tended to support the unverified allegations and pre-establish unfavorable conclusions as to the nature and objectives of Operation Leprechaun. It now appears that these conclusions were both premature and, at the very least, unfortunate."

Vanik said the operation's objective "was to collect tax-related information about individuals suspected of involvement in political corruption, bribery, extortion and other offenses" and resulted in "actual or potential tax claims totalling about $7 million."

He said he plans further hearings this year to determine whether over-reaction by IRS hampered a long-standing intelligence-gathering project concerning possible income tax evasion or avoidance by persons with secret bank accounts in the Caribbean and interfered with other legitimate IRS activities.

The report was part of conclusions issued in a report to Congress on subcommittee activities during the past year.

Thousands Idled As Spanish Workers Continue Their Strike

MADRID (AP) — New labor unrest idled thousands of workers in Spain on Thursday as defiant subway workers in Madrid voted against returning to work and the army opened a third subway line to ease the traffic crush in the capital.

A rash of wildcat strikes hit the metal, steel and construction industries. Police clashed with demonstrators in a half dozen places around the capital.

The 3,800 subway strikers called on the army to stop emergency operation of the trains, ordered by the government Wednesday. The three lines now in operation serve 70% of the usual 2 million daily riders on the privately owned subway system.

The first attempt to negotiate a settlement of the 4-day-old subway strike, which crippled the city until the army moved in, ended in failure. The subway workers defied a government threat to draft them back to work.

The government, feeling its way toward a more liberal labor policy after years of no-strike rule, sought an end to the subway walkout without setting off more labor conflicts in key industries now negotiating new contracts.

Some government officials said privately they believed the subway walkout was part of a leftist campaign, led by the illegal Communist party, to undermine the new regime's authority.

Meeting in a Madrid church, the subway workers reported the company refused to negotiate salaries until the workers were back on the job. They demand a 20% increase in pay now averaging about $260 a month as their share of a 20% fare increase last August.

Strikes were illegal for 35 years under the regime of Gen. Francisco Franco, who died last November. A new law just before his death permitted strikes, if they were for purely economic reasons. But any strike, such as the subway walkout, that affected public order remained illegal.

Police patrolled the trains and roamed the capital to crush demonstrations in support of subway workers. Some youths were clubbed, but no arrests were reported. A new police policy sometimes allows peaceful demonstrations.

Labor unrest widened both in support of the subway strike and to back demands elsewhere for more pay, frozen by the government and eroded by an annual inflation rate of more than 20%.

An estimated 30,000 metal workers at six plants in the Madrid area were off the job. At Nuestra Senora de Fatima church, 1,300 persons staged a sit-in in support of salary increases. Police surrounded the church as the protestors also called for liberty for political prisoners and solidarity with the subway strikers.

In Aviles in northern Spain, 6-500 steel workers struck a government-owned steel plant to demand more pay.

The government held in reserve legal authority to mobilize the subway strikers into the army temporarily.

Labor Leaders Resign Posts, Blast Ford Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor leaders angered over President Ford's veto of a bill expanding union picketing rights resigned Thursday from a key government advisory committee, declaring that Ford double-crossed them.

The walkout apparently meant that any chance Ford might have had of winning some labor support in the presidential campaign was gone.

"If he can't support labor, I don't know how labor can support him," said Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons, whose 2.2 million-member union is the nation's largest.

Fitzsimmons and eight leaders of AFL-CIO construction unions stalked from a meeting of the Collective Bargaining Committee in Construction, on which they had served with management representatives since their appointment by Ford last April.

The Teamsters and hard-hat unions traditionally favor Republican presidential candidates, but the union chiefs vowed that Ford "will get absolutely no support."

AFL-CIO President George Meany and other union chiefs are expected to resign shortly from another presidential advisory panel, completing labor's break with the administration.

The walkout by the construction union leaders also increased pressure on Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop to resign. He is weighing such a move, and aides say his decision will be based on a determination whether he can still be effective.

Robert A. Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department said, "I don't think anyone can believe he speaks for the President or the administration."

The labor secretary had drafted, with Ford's support, legislation which would have broadened the picketing rights of construction unions and would have created a national committee with authority to intervene in local disputes and to seek settlements. Ford, who at first said he would sign the bill, vetoed it last week after pleas from industry leaders and political conservatives.

At a news conference following the union chiefs' resignation, Georgine charged that management members of the bargaining committee had turned anti-union.

"We have neither the disposition nor the time to play charades with a management which has indicated it is merely a proxy for the most virulent anti-union forces in the United States and a President who is overwhelmed by that group," he declared.

Management spokesmen had no comment, nor did Dunlop, who was not present at the meeting. However, his aide, D. Quinn Mills, warned that the committee's collapse "threatens a return to the chaotic situation of the late 1960s in the construction industry, with all the unfortunate consequences that suggests for the American economy and the nation's labor relations atmosphere generally."

A Suicidal Course

Congressional investigation of alleged illegal and abusive activities on the part of secret security and enforcement agencies in this nation is a proper exercise, in our opinion — if the focus is kept on abuses of power by politicians and their agents in the secret services which violate the rights of American citizens.

But when the investigations develop into what amounts to a holy war against our entire security system — and they have — Congress and those elements who expose whatever they can get on the CIA and other intelligence operations whenever they can get it are going too far.

American publications are identifying active CIA agents abroad and at least one of the agents thus uncovered has been killed.

Some former agents and officials privy to national secrets during their employment with government sub rosa organizations are breaking their secrecy oaths to share with the public their knowledge of sensitive areas, and who knows what dangers that can lead to?

Congress — in a battle with the executive over primacy in foreign policy — howls over each new leak about CIA activities abroad, as if paying dollars to foreign political allies, for example, was in itself a monstrous act never before undertaken by other nations.

Those in Congress and the other critics of the various U.S. intelligence operations cannot be so naive. If they are, if their attacks over such a broad range are patriotically motivated, they are nevertheless suicidally wrong.

As outgoing CIA Director William Colby noted, there are many kinds of secret activities in American life: the secret ballot, the grand jury system, tax records and so forth. Secrecy means protection in certain sensitive areas. The American preference is for less secrecy in life; but some secrecy is a necessity. There is a need for secrecy in the vital security area in which operatives are required to do things on order of their superiors which parents do not teach their children. They are required to do these things because of the realities of the world in which we live. The agents, their superiors, the president who gives the orders and the members of the Congress who are privy to the activity can at the same time be decent human beings. The hypocrisy of trying to live by decent standards while at the same time authorizing activity which does not meet those standards is one of life's contradictions and one of its tragedies.

It is a glorious thing that American society is open enough to drag out the dirty linen and talk about cleaning it up. But enough is enough. The self-righteousness is not only getting nauseating, but dangerous.

One official just recently said, aptly, that when corruption is found in the police department it is exposed and removed but the police force is not disbanded. The parallel is obvious. We are beginning the process of effectively disbanding the CIA.

The concern of many, including this newspaper, was that the secret agencies in the future not be allowed to use their power to abuse the rights of American citizens and that powerful elected or appointed officials not be allowed the opportunity to use the agencies for personal or political gain.

To that extent the process of turning over the rocks and exposing the abuses of power was a necessity. But the critics are ranging far afield and it could get the nation into trouble.

Bogar To Retire

We recall seeing the principal, red shirt and black tie, or vice versa, mungling with the students between classes, in the cafeteria or, on game nights, in the Oval or at one of the two or three gymnasiums around the town which the Links called home before their own basketball court was built. We remember the daily PA announcements and a couple of no-nonsense but friendly talks in the office next to the stairs. These are recollections of the early years of Bill Bogar's tenure at Lincoln High School. He was a visible, communicative principal, one whom the students respected and liked, as much as the young could like an authority figure.

Just recently Bogar was noticed on cafeteria duty — picking up trays and talking with students. Some things haven't changed in a quarter of a century and that's good.

Bogar this week announced his retirement, effective at the end of the present school term, after 26 years as head man at Lincoln's oldest public high school.

Lincoln High School has changed in some respects over the Bogar years, from the city's glamour school which was, as Bogar observed, the center of the universe for kids of an earlier era, to a tougher inner city school which unfortunately and unjustly suffers from an element of public snobbery. Tradition-rich — some might say it is suffocated by tradition — the school's image is somewhat faded, and yet a image different from what it once was.

But the public perception of Lincoln High has not dimmed Bogar's effort, or the effort of the excellent staff and program under his direction, to ready LHS students for other of life's opportunities. Nor do we imagine that his faith in the great majority of youth has dimmed over the years.

Bill Bogar is an exceptionally fine educator. His contributions to Lincoln High School and to the youth of Lincoln will long be remembered.

It's Still 'Quagmire'

NEW YORK — Gerald Ford and other backers of American intervention in Angola insist that the situation there should be judged on its own merits, and not by reference to what happened in Vietnam. Either way it comes out quagmire.

There is, for example, Ford's turn to diplomacy after the Senate frustrated his request for funds for military assistance to one of the contending factions in Angola. American officials have been traveling Africa to urge and Ford himself has called for an immediate cease-fire and an end to all outside intervention and a government of national unity permitting the solution of the Angolan problem by the Angolans themselves.

This sounds fine, and is much preferable to shipping over more American arms and mercenaries, maybe eventually a few American military "advisers" — and who knows what after that? But the basic proposal — a government of national unity — formed by the contending factions — probably won't work, and for much the same reasons that the United States could never get the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong to participate in "free elections" with the South Vietnamese.

In the first place the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which has received substantial assistance from the Soviet Union and a troop contingent from Cuba is more effective than either of the two factions that have formed an uneasy coalition backed by the United States. The Popular Movement's armed forces are better equipped, trained and motivated and its leadership is better. So far as can be ascertained, it has more popular support among Angolans — not least because it holds out hope of more efficient government — and it is not distracted by the tribal and personal animosities that hamper the effectiveness of the coalition forces.

Why should the Popular Movement, therefore, give up its advantage and form a national unity with its rivals — even if there were more political unity among all three factions than there evidently is? Why should the Popular Movement believe that the United States, having sought to arm its opponents — and having already provided them about $30 million in arms — is seeking anything now but another way to prevent their defeat?

The Popular Movement, moreover, has already received diplomatic recognition as the legitimate government of Angola from more than 40 nations, including the Soviet Union and many African states. It is not at all clear that these governments would extend the same recognition to a coalition government including factions not now recognized by anyone.

The major reason for the movement's widespread international support is not however its domestic authority. It is rather that the other side is backed by the racist regime in South Africa which has unwisely sent troops to aid the same coalition the United States has supported. Having the immense political advantage of not being backed by South Africa is reason enough for the Popular Movement not to enter a coalition with the factions that do have such backing.

Finally, as made clear in a stirring report by Michael Kaufman of The New York Times, the United States has virtually no moral standing in Africa to act as a peacemaker in Angola because of the stubborn American support of the Salazar-Caetano regimes in Portugal. When these regimes were fighting a lengthy colonial war to retain possession of Angola and other African territories, the Soviet Union supported the Popular Movement's liberation struggle — while the United States, with an eye to its air base in the Portuguese Azores, backed the white colonialists.

In these circumstances, the only sensible American policy is to use the channels of détente — and the implicit threat of closing them — to get the Soviet Union to live up to its stated policy of ending all foreign interference in Angola, while Washington works — as it is doing — to get the hated South Africans out too. That could clear the way to the solution of the Angolan problem by the Angolans themselves. And if that should result, as is probable in the Popular Movement coming to power, the United States would be in better position to offer its friendship and assistance, thus to some extent countering Soviet influence in Luanda.

But instead White House circumlocutions and Ford's remarks in his interview with the National Broadcasting Company suggest that the United States probably is financing the training mercenary forces to fight the Popular Movement. If so, Washington has learned nothing either from Vietnam or the last fifteen years in Africa.

BOSTON — The murder of Richard S. Welch, the Central Intelligence Agency station chief in Athens, was a piece of cowardly terrorism. No past abuse by the CIA can justify random crimes against its officers.

Understandably, the Welch case has brought to a boil the resentment felt by CIA veterans at critics of the agency. Many honorable and brave persons have worked there over the years, often providing wiser analysis than any other source, and they may well resent the idea that the public lumps them in with tricksters and would-be assassins.

But it is another matter entirely to use the murder of Richard Welch as a political device, as President Ford and his national security assistants are evidently trying to do now.

Immediately after the murder, CIA officials sought to put the blame on an obscure left-wing organization, Fifth Estate, that has published the names of U.S. agents, including Welch. The CIA director, William E. Colby, denounced the group's behavior as "irresponsible and paranoid."

As a matter of evidence, it is exceedingly unlikely that recent publication of Welch's name was responsible for his death. His cover in Athens was extremely thin. He lived in a house known by many to have been used by CIA station chiefs for years. His function was hardly a secret.

Way Down Deep

I have concluded, after reading Ernie Chambers' "I Told You So, Part II," that Las Vegas can utilize his talents more so than can Nebraska. He might even hook on as an assistant to Jimmy, the Greek — but I suggest when he applies for the job, he simply call the odds-maker "Jimmy."

I'd also thought of establishing a fund — Rail Fare to Vegas for Chambers. But he obviously cleaned up on the bowl games, so that was a bad idea.

Now, don't get the idea I am envious of Chambers, his gift on prediction and the money he wins, someone told me that down deep he is a lovable, sweet and compassionate American citizen.

Targets For The Idea-Killers

"We can expect centrist Idea Killers, under the pious banner of 'examining the platform,' to reject the embryonic idea as unworthy because it has not yet been submitted in book-length form with colorfully tabbed appendices."

visiting our forces in Saigon were subtly persuaded to swallow our policy whole by razzle-dazzle public relations techniques. But he used the magic word "brainwashed," and the Idea-Killers blasted out of the political waters any candidate who would admit that he had been so easily misled.

HUMPHREY

In 1972, George McGovern had an idea that fit into his philosophy of redistributing wealth, and launched the thousand-dollar baby bonus. If you buy the philosophy, the idea makes simple sense, but he was roundly lambasted by the Idea-Killers for not having "costed it out," and the candidate looked foolish as he backed away.

In 1976, the Idea-Killers have already entered the food-for-thought lunchroom and asked for the Big Dutchman, Ronald Reagan's sin: He has put forward an original thought. He has suggested that much of the responsibility for providing welfare should be moved from the federal government to the states, where it could not only be handled more efficiently, but where local voter pressures would keep a welfare bureaucracy from building empires.

The notion of decentralizing welfare — snatching its control from compassionate Washingtonians and giving it to stingy states and localities — is debatable. But the Idea-Killers do not want a debate, they want a cudgel.

Thus, we can expect the shrinking but still articulate liberal establishment to hoot at any concept that reduces the total welfare paid out. We can expect centrist Idea-Killers, under the pious banner of "examining the platform," to reject the embryonic idea as unworthy because it was not yet been submitted in book-length form with colorfully-tabbed appendices.

More important, we can expect the candidate's immediate opposition — in this case, President Ford's political advisers — to turn the thought into a scare issue. Already, anti-Reagan voices in New Hampshire and Florida are saying that the conservative candidate's "plan will institute and raise state and local taxes, and Reagan is defensively muttering it will not.

The potential for intelligent debate is there: Three positions are shaping up regarding welfare. One, put forward recently by a group of Democratic governors, is to turn over all welfare responsibility to the federal government. The opposite, heard from conservatives, is to shift most of the responsibility away from Washington to the states. A third position, presumably espoused by the administration, is to let the welfare mess fester as it is, neither federal fish nor fowl.

My own preference is for the Shultz-Moynihan welfare reform. But as long as idea-slaughter is not considered a crime against the body politic, we will only hear the demagogic response: "He's trying to raise your local taxes."

In reality, Conservative Reagan is trying to lower the taxpayer's total bill — adding a dollar locally so as to cut two dollars nationally. But because it is new, it is puzzling: As a result, Reagan's opponents will misrepresent the conservative position, liberals will ridicule it, and — politics being what it is — the man with the idea will be forced to pretend he is not for any "new" tax anywhere.

Don't we want to talk about ideas in a political campaign? Or do we prefer candidates who safely announce they will come up with "bold leadership" and "fresh initiatives" — later?

This is not to suggest we take new ideas uncritically, but to suggest that we treat them, at least at first, as matters to be explored rather than invitations to derision. If Hubert Humphrey has a scheme to put the whole country into an economic-planning computer, we ought to hear him. (There is an example of an old Idea-Killer's misrepresentation of a veteran politician's thoughtful and legitimate, if crackbrained, idea.)

Killing an idea is easy; conceiving one is hard. Groping for new ways to solve problems may make a man vulnerable to the smug smirks of "smart politics," and a new idea is not always a good idea, but this may be the year that the Idea-Killers walk into a long-overdue ambush.

Welch Case Becomes Political Tool undertaken in secret for the very reason that, if they were submitted to the public scrutiny our system requires, Congress and the public would reject them.

The Welch case will be used by

Colby to lobby for secrecy legislation that he has long sought. It would allow the government to get injunctions against publication — by newspapers or anyone else — of secrets disclosed by present or former intelligence employees.

(c) New York Times Service

The way would also be open to bring reporters before grand juries and demand that they name any such sources. And the definition of "secrets" would remain quite vague.

In the Pentagon Papers case, Justice Potter Stewart of the Supreme Court warned that the government was hurting its own cause by trying to sweep too much under the label secret. "When everything is classified," he said, "then nothing is classified ... The hallmark of a truly effective internal security system would be the maximum possible disclosure, recognizing that secrecy can best be preserved only when credibility is truly maintained."

Much unhappy experience cautions against letting the emotions of the Welch murder lead us to careless legitimizing of secrecy. And there is a broader danger.

President Ford and his colleagues, judging by their recent comments, hope to prevent any thoroughgoing reform of the CIA. They will use the Welch case to that end, in particular to resist limits on covert operations and to reduce congressional scrutiny. If they succeed, the ironic result would be to preserve the very faults of structure and performance that have hurt an agency with much good on its record.

Waiting For Answer

Quite recently the "Voice of America" announced the angry words of the British premier, Mr. Wilson, about American donations and arms for the Irish terrorists. I did not hear an answer from our side.

Meanwhile the bloodshed in Northern Ireland continues with many victims and the world can be astonished, as Great Britain is so fundamentally important to the USA and the free world. Let us remember what Britain has said to Spain, Argentina and Ireland. They cannot ignore that the majority of the population of Gibraltar, Falkland Islands as well as Northern Ireland are for remaining with the British.

veteran politician's thoughtful and legitimate, if crackbrained, idea.)

Killing an idea is easy; conceiving one is hard. Groping for new ways to solve problems may make a man vulnerable to the smug smirks of "smart politics," and a new idea is not always a good idea, but this may be the year that the Idea-Killers walk into a long-overdue ambush.

Welch Case Becomes Political Tool

... President Ford escorts Mrs. Richard S. Welch from the chapel at Arlington following services for the CIA agent slain in Athens ...

dertaken in secret for the very reason that, if they were submitted to the public scrutiny our system requires, Congress and the public would reject them.

The Welch case will be used by

Colby to lobby for secrecy legislation that he has long sought. It would allow the government to get injunctions against publication — by newspapers or anyone else — of secrets disclosed by present or former intelligence employees.

(C) New York Times Service

The way would also be open to bring reporters before grand juries and demand that they name any such sources. And the definition of "secrets" would remain quite vague.

In the Pentagon Papers case, Justice Potter Stewart of the Supreme Court warned that the government was hurting its own cause by trying to sweep too much under the label secret. "When everything is classified," he said, "then nothing is classified." The hallmark of a truly effective internal security system would be the maximum possible disclosure, recognizing that secrecy can best be preserved only when credibility is truly maintained.

Much unhappy experience cautions against letting the emotions of the Welch murder lead us to careless legitimizing of secrecy. And there is a broader danger.

President Ford and his colleagues, judging by their recent comments, hope to prevent any thoroughgoing reform of the CIA. They will use the Welch case to that end, in particular to resist limits on covert operations and to reduce congressional scrutiny. If they succeed, the ironic result would be to preserve the very faults of structure and performance that have hurt an agency with much good on its record.

Way Down Deep

I have concluded, after reading Ernie Chambers' "I Told You So, Part II," that Las Vegas can utilize his talents more so than can Nebraska. He might even hook on as an assistant to Jimmy, The Greek — but I suggest when he applies for the job, he simply call the odds-maker "Jimmy."

I'd also thought of establishing a fund: "Rail Fare to Vegas for Chambers." But he obviously cleaned up on the bowl games, so that was a bad idea.

Now, don't get the idea I am envious of Chambers, his gift on prediction, and the money he wins; someone told me that down deep, he is a lovable, sweet and compassionate American citizen.

Waiting For Answer

Quite recently the "Voice of America" announced the angry words of the British premier, Mr. Wilson, about American donations and arms for the Irish terrorists. I did not hear an answer from our side.

Meanwhile, the bloodshed in Northern Ireland continues with many victims, and the world can be astonished, as Great Britain is so fundamentally important to the USA and the free world. Let us remember what Britain has said to Spain, Argentina and Ireland. They cannot ignore that the majority of the population of Gibraltar, Falkland Islands as well as Northern Ireland are for remaining with the British.

Expression Of Thanks

We would like to express our gratitude to the Lincoln Star, on behalf of the Southeastern Regional Office of the American Lung Association of Nebraska, for its year-around support of the association's programs in the control and prevention of lung disease.

We also wish to thank all who supported our annual Christmas Seal campaign through their contributions.

Nebraska Teachers Set Goals Differently

Nebraska teachers differ significantly from their counterparts in other states regarding strikes, parent involvement in schools and political activity, according to a recent national survey.

Teachers everywhere first want good schools for students, and second, a decent living standard for themselves, the survey found.

But Paul Belz, Nebraska State Education Association executive secretary, wrote in an NSEA newspaper editorial that teachers locally are treated poorly, despite their "unique" attitudes toward public service.

Nebraska teachers, Belz said, lack enthusiasm for strikes, partly because of pioneer negotiations law and because of State Court of Industrial Relations influence. (Teacher strikes totalled about 160 in America last year.)

Belz said 98% of those surveyed in the state sought greater parent participation in their schools. And more Nebraska teachers than those elsewhere expressed faith in the democratic process, through political involvement.

The "bad news," Belz wrote, is that "nationally, twice as many teachers earn $10,000 annually than do those in Nebraska." That condition "can and must be corrected — soon! And a depressed economy should not be used as a 'cop-out.'" That statement comes as 1976-77 teacher contract talks are getting underway with school boards.

Belz declared that the private sector — despite continuing inflation — "goes right on consuming in record quantities," but "only in the case of public services does that same public resolve to 'tighten its belt.'"

Belz called that "shoddy treatment to a group of dedicated and competent professionals." He said teachers "shouldn't now be expected to lead a retreat to austerity," when they were only beginning to catch up.

Wayne Man, 55, Given One Year In Gun Incident

Wayne (AP) — A Wayne man has been sentenced to one year in the Nebraska Penal Complex in connection with a shooting incident involving his brother.

Last Oct. 31, following a one-day jury trial, Leonard Wischhof, 55, was found guilty of shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim.

The charges were filed after a May 3 shooting incident at the mobile home in which both Wischhof and his brother, Paul, resided.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge George W. Dittick of Norfolk gave Wischhof credit for the 150 days he has already served in the Wayne County Jail.

Court Upholds Dismissal Of Suit Against OPPD

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday upheld a Douglas County District Court decision which threw out a $2 million class action suit against the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD).

Robert Blankenship filed the action, claiming the power district's late charges violated the state's usury limits.

For residential customers, the charge amounted to 10 per cent or $5, whichever was smaller. For commercial customers, the maximum was $25.

The court threw out the class action because it said the district would have to raise rates to pay back the $2 million in late charges. The court said some individuals who had only paid one late charge would actually end up paying more in increased rates than they would gain through the refund.

Because of this potential conflict, the court said the case could not survive as a class action.

But the Supreme Court told the Douglas County District Court it would have to consider Blankenship's attempt to get a refund on his own personal late charges.

In a criminal case, the high court upheld the Cherry County

Bill Joern

Joern, Head Of SeNHPC, Is Resigning

Bill Joern, who has served as executive director of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council since August 1972, has submitted his resignation.

According to Art Blackman, president of the SeNHPC board of directors, the resignation is effective Saturday.

Joern has accepted a position with the American Association of Comprehensive Health Planning in Washington, D.C.

The SeNHPC executive committee has named Jane Ford acting executive director.

Ms. Ford joined the council staff in 1974, and she has served as project review coordinator and community health planner.

Joern has been with SeNHPC since May, 1969. Prior to his selection as executive director, he served as associate director.

SeNHPC will be disbanded later this year. It will be replaced by the Southeast Nebraska Health Systems Agency, currently being organized as a result of new national health planning legislation.

Smith Set To Introduce Trails West Park Bill

Kimball (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., intends to introduce legislation to create a Trails West National Park that would stretch from Ash Hollow near Ogallala to Register Cliff in Wyoming.

Mrs. Smith told a meeting Wednesday night of the Western Nebraska United Chamber of Commerce the proposed park would follow the Mormon and Oregon Trails along U.S. 26.

She said the bill would produce economic benefits through tourist visits and preserve the "priceless historic resources" through management by the National Park Service.

Mrs. Smith said the National Park Service would have to study the proposal before it could become a reality.

Total attendance at all the sites proposed for inclusion in the Trails West Park was 320,000 in 1974, and the Department of Economic Development estimated attendance would double in the future.

The department also estimated 7.2 million persons drove past Ogallala on I-80 during 1974, which could produce an additional $2 million in revenue for the four counties involved in the proposed park, Mrs. Smith said.

She said when the bill is introduced, it probably will be assigned to the House Interior and Insular Affairs committee of which Mrs. Smith is a member.

Albion Leaders Quit; Boilesen Chosen Mayor

Albion (AP) — Albion lost a mayor and city council president Wednesday night.

According to City Administrator Steve Lind, Mayor Joe Wilson tendered his resignation due to illness, and council President Bill Mundschenk resigned for what he said were personal reasons.

The resignations reduced the council to just three members.

The remaining councilmen elected Councilman Wayne Boilesen as the new mayor.

According to Lind, Boilesen will appoint a new councilman to succeed himself within the next two weeks, after which the council will pick a new president.

Mailman Receives Probation

Omaha (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Robert Denney Wednesday sentenced a former Postal Service letter carrier to one year probation on a charge he stole University of Nebraska football tickets from the mails and sold some of them.

A federal grand jury indicted David Carl Inman, 26, Nov. 13 on a charge that he stole six books of season tickets from the mails on Aug. 6.

Inman, formerly of Louisville, now lives at Albion.

Records showed the tickets were mailed by the university and addressed to Harold Hand of Omaha.

Inman was accused of removing the ticket books from the mails during the delivery process. Federal authorities said he later sold six tickets to one game and tried to sell six tickets to another before he was apprehended.

'Mouse' Is No Guarantee

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Those little black boxes that detect the presence of radar, the latest craze of the speeding motorist, might do their job, but they can't guarantee that their owners won't get a speeding ticket.

At least not in Nebraska, according to Nebraska State Patrol Lt. Col. Elmer Kohmetscher.

The device, sometimes called a "mouse," is selling well in area radio stores, Kohmetscher admits, and it seems to be more effective than the original radar sentinels which became popular a few years ago.

But Nebraska state troopers still rely on that undetectable device, VASCAR (Visual Average Speed Computer and Recorder). "We still have over 100 of those units in use, and they have proven quite effective in the past seven years," Kohmetscher said.

Relies On Observation

VASCAR, invented back in 1965 by a Virginia man after seven years of research, has been in use in Nebraska since 1968. It relies on individual observation by the operating trooper and is based on the physical principle that distance divided by time equals speed.

A trooper sees a speeding car pass a visible landmark on the highway (a billboard, mile marker, or some other stationary object) and flips a time switch on the VASCAR unit which sits on the transmission hump of his car.

As the car passes another landmark, as little as an eighth of a mile down the road, the trooper flips the time switch off and proceeds in the direction of the speeder. As he passes the first landmark the trooper flips on a distance switch, then flips it off as he passes the second landmark.

The odometer in the patrol car has fed the distance into the VASCAR computer and the unit instantly computes the average speed of the suspected vehicle and reads it out on a digital dial on the unit. This speed can be locked in and used as evidence to convict the speeder.

Accuracy Accepted

Accuracy of the device is "guaranteed within one or two miles per hour, if not exact," Kohmetscher explained, and "judges and attorneys have accepted that fact quite well over the years."

Troopers are given extensive training in the use of VASCAR and are required to prove proficiency before being allowed to issue citations, he added.

Radar, on the other hand, operates on an electronic signal, which bounces off of a moving vehicle and records how fast that vehicle is moving. Effective range of the units is about a half mile.

Warning Given

The "mouse" picks up the presence of such a signal, trips a warning bell and allows the motorist to slow down before the radar has had a chance to record a speed.

The patrol has used radar since 1954 and is relying heavily on the use of modern mobile radar "guns" now, since it cuts down on the pursuit time of the trooper, Kohmetscher said.

"These radar units give an instant readout of speed coming or going," he added, "and the trooper doesn't have to follow and clock the car like he does with VASCAR."

Stationary radar is also used since "it allows us to stop a larger volume of vehicles," he said, "but it does tie up a few more personnel."

"Those original radar detection devices, popular a few years back, just didn't beep in enough time to allow the motorist to slow down," Kohmetscher explained as he told of a couple in western Nebraska he arrested several years ago, on different days of the week, in the same car.

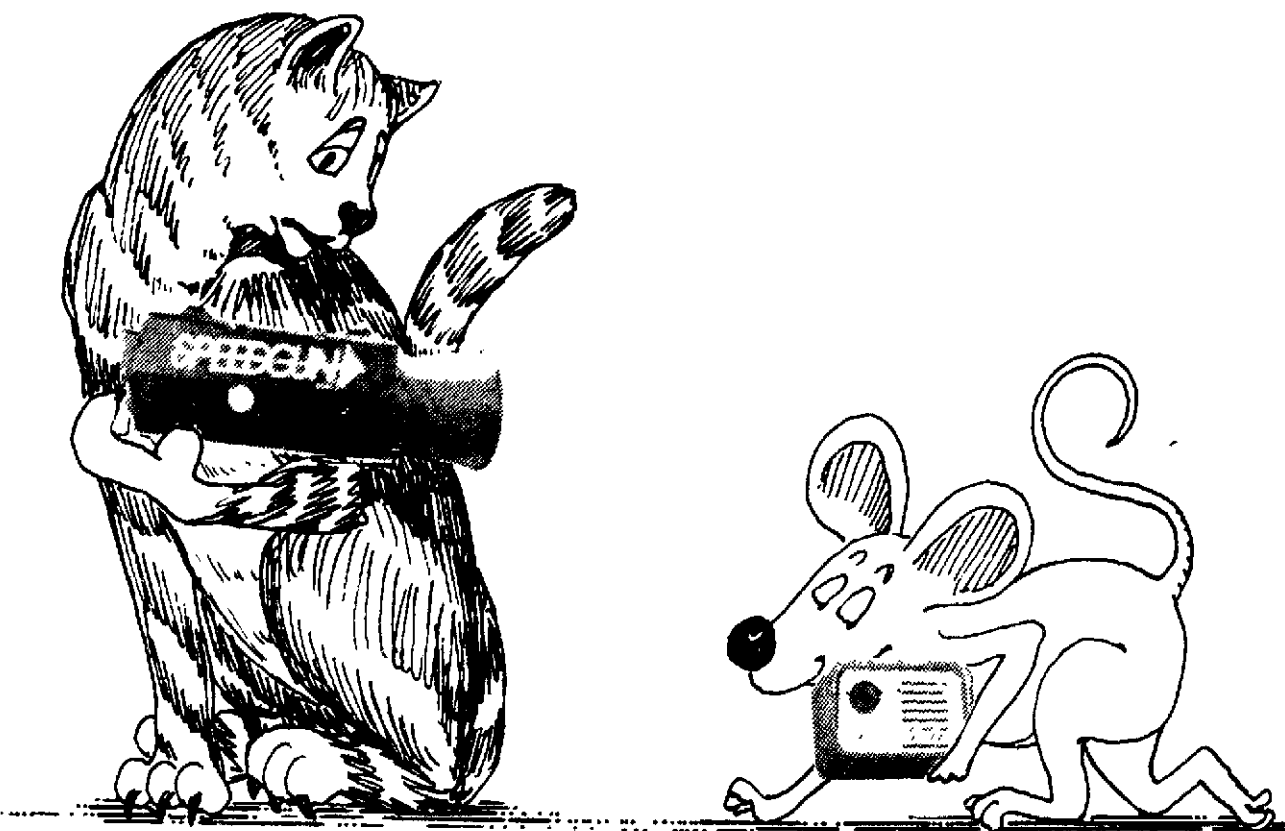

'Same Car, Same Reason'

"I stopped his man from Morrill (in western Scotts Bluff County) because this sentinel just didn't work in time. Later in the week I stopped his wife in the same car for the same reason."

Kohmetscher indicated that a radar device with a longer range will probably be developed to counter the "mouse" gimmick.

The VASCAR equipment will continue to be used since it has proven effective and can't be detected because it sends out no signals. In addition, airplane patrol of certain roads will also be used in an effort to keep tabs on speeders, he added.

Mothers Explain How To Get Angry At Children Without Insulting Them

(c) Newhouse News Service

Any man or woman who has ever spent time roaming the aisles of a supermarket has observed the supermarket mother.

She is the shrill, arm-yanking shrew who spansks her child right in the middle of the laundry detergents and household cleansers. She's the one who yells through clenched teeth: "You put those cookies back, or I'll, I'll, I'll..."

Non-parents, tightly gripping their shopping cart handles, often vow: "If I ever have kids, I will be patient, full of warmth and will never, never yell at my child in public."

But when the non-parents eventually become parents, those pledges sometimes lose their strength.

Elaine Mazlish and Adele Faber both started out as idealistic mothers, determined that the mistakes of their parents wouldn't be visited on their children. It didn't take long for reality to intrude.

Enrolled In Workshop

Finding themselves complaining a great deal about the behavior of their children, they enrolled in a parent workshop taught by Dr. Ham Ginott, psychologist, lecturer and author.

At the first lecture 10 years ago, recount Mrs. Mazlish and Mrs. Faber, Ginott said, "What is it about the language I use with children that is different?"

"The language I use does not evaluate. I avoid expressions which judge a child's character or ability. I steer clear of words like 'stupid,' 'clumsy,' 'bad,' and even words like 'beautiful,' 'good,'

'wonderful,' because they are not helpful; they get in the child's way. Instead I use words that describe. I describe what I see; I describe what I feel."

The advice that the two women gained in that workshop was helpful. It changed their lives and those of their children so drastically that in 1974 they co-authored a book called "Liberated Parents, Liberated Children."

Anger Without Insult

The key to Ginott's theory is the idea of expressing anger without insult. "Let's face it," said Mrs. Mazlish, "nobody can make you madder than your own kids. We either explode or we hold it in. I used to explode with phrases like 'Why can't you ever...?' 'You'll always be a...?' 'You never...?' 'Who did that?'"

Mrs. Mazlish's right and wrong example of handling a parent-child conflict is one with which most parents can identify.

The old way, "I came into the kitchen and found that the kids had dragged out milk, crackers and peanut butter and left it smeared and scattered all over the kitchen. I screamed, 'You are slob. Can't I leave you for a moment without your making this kind of mess?'"

The new way, "No less angry, but using my newly acquired verbal skills, I said, 'I see peanut butter, crackers and milk on the table and floor. It would be helpful if you could put the things away because I am feeling very tired.'"

Mrs. Mazlish finished her dramatization and smiled. "Do you see the difference? Now I was yelling with the new way, but there were no names called, no berating, no language that wounds. You'd be surprised how grateful kids are not to be called names."

Adverse Effect

Even when parents compliment children, that can have an adverse effect, too, according to the author.

She talked about the mother whose son fixed something in their home. She rewarded him by telling him, "Darling, you're brilliant. You are fantastic!"

It would have been better if she had said, "Here we were all so upset that this wasn't working, and you fixed it. How did you ever think of how to repair it for us?"

Children are often labeled, and Mrs. Mazlish picks up some of the labels for titles of chapters in her book. There are segments on Mr. Sad Sack, The Princess, The Whiner. "Children don't have to be stuck in roles... bully, complainer, go-getter, etc., and if they are, you have to help them move out of those roles," she said.

Often, Mrs. Mazlish observed, parents try to deny the way a child feels and even tell him how he feels.

Sample Conversations

She reconstructed conversations she had heard between parents and children:

Child: (Crying) My finger! My finger hurts!

Father: It couldn't hurt. It's only a little scratch.

Or —

Child: I'm hot.

Mother: How can you feel hot; it's cool in here.

Or —

Child: Mommy, look at this little duck. Isn't it cute?

Mother: Ah, that's for a little baby. You're not interested in baby toys any more.

"What these parents were saying over and over again was: You don't mean what you say, you don't know what you know, you don't feel what you feel," Mrs. Mazlish said. What they should have said, instead, was:

"I see you have a scratch. A scratch can hurt."

Or —

"It's really hot for you in here, isn't it?"

Or —

"Ah! You like that little duck, don't you?"

The difficult part, says Mrs. Mazlish, is erasing the old tape that runs through us. It is harder to unlearn the old language than learn the new.

Using Fewer Words

It is easier for parents to stop and think before they speak, said Mrs. Mazlish, because they will be using fewer words.

"I remember one time my son John set his glass on the edge of the table. I said to him, 'John! How many times have I told you not to do that? Remember the last time when you knocked it off on the floor and it broke into thousands of pieces? Such a clumsy boy.'"

"Now, a child can easily become mother-deaf. He just tunes you out," explained Mrs. Mazlish.

"What probably would have been more effective would have been to say, 'John, the glass!'"

In their book, Mrs. Mazlish and Mrs. Faber, both of New York, observe that even if you accept a child's feelings, sometimes you have to limit his actions.

Take cookies, for example. Say you find Jimmy in the cookie jar just before dinner time. You should say, "Jimmy, I know those cookies are your favorites and that you would probably like the whole box, but we're just about ready for dinner. Now would you like one or two cookies? You decide."

Threat Avoided

"Children are equal in dignity — not in experience, and not in competence. You have given him a choice — not a threat," Mrs. Mazlish said.

Why Do Siblings Turn Out So Different?

The New York Times

New York — There you are, raising two children, and doing the best you can. But the children are so different. One is intellectual, sensitive, even a bit introverted. The other is outgoing, independent, won't read a book unless coerced. And that second one seems a little harder to reach, off in some other world.

One psychologist who has been doing a lot of research recently on what brothers and sisters mean to each other and how that affects their relationship to the parents is Dr. Victor Cicirelli at Purdue.

He's been looking at two-child families, most of them in the middle-income and lower-middle-income brackets.

His findings point to the impact of sibling rivalry — which is at its most intense when children are of the same sex — and of traditional sex roles.

Cicirelli says that if a boy has an older sister, especially if she's from two to four years older, that boy is much more likely to be good at school — or any formal learning, including such things as taking instruction on how to tie a shoelace — than if he has an older brother.

The older sister is, for one thing, more inclined to help out around the house, including accepting some childrearing chores.

Her brother accepts that help, even expects it, and that predisposes him to accepting advice and instruction from others. It means his parents will be more effective with him.

If he had an older brother, however, the rivalry would be a prominent factor. The older brother is the last one in the world the younger boy would accept help from.

Moreover, the older brother, because of the rivalry and because it is not his traditional role to help with "womanly" chores, wouldn't want to be bothered anyway.

Instead of taking instruction from parents, that boy with an older brother, in Cicirelli's view, would be more receptive to learning that is "informal" — at the ballpark, in the street or just among friends.

'Mouse' Is No Guarantee

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Those little black boxes that detect the presence of radar, the latest craze of the speeding motorist, might do their job, but they can't guarantee that their owners won't get a speeding ticket.

At least not in Nebraska, according to Nebraska State Patrol Lt. Col. Elmer Kohmetscher.

The device, sometimes called a "mouse," is selling well in area radio stores, Kohmetscher admits, and it seems to be more effective than the original radar sentinels which became popular a few years ago.

But Nebraska state troopers still rely on that undetectable device, VASCAR (Visual Average Speed Computer and Recorder). "We still have over 100 of those units in use, and they have proven quite effective in the past seven years," Kohmetscher said.

Relies On Observation

VASCAR, invented back in 1965 by a Virginia man after seven years of research, has been in use in Nebraska since 1968. It relies on individual observation by the operating trooper and is based on the physical principle that distance divided by time equals speed.

A trooper sees a speeding car pass a visible landmark on the highway (a billboard, mile marker, or some other stationary object) and flips a time switch on the VASCAR unit which sits on the transmission hump of his car.

As the car passes another landmark, as little as an eighth of a mile down the road, the trooper flips the time switch off and proceeds in the direction of the speeder. As he passes the first landmark the trooper flips on a distance switch, then flips it off as he passes the second landmark.

The odometer in the patrol car has fed the distance into the VASCAR computer and the unit instantly computes the average speed of the suspected vehicle and reads it out on a digital dial on the unit. This speed can be locked in and used as evidence to convict the speeder.

Accuracy Accepted

Accuracy of the device is "guaranteed within one or two miles per hour, if not exact," Kohmetscher explained, and "judges and attorneys have accepted that fact quite well over the years."

Troopers are given extensive training in the use of VASCAR and are required to prove proficiency before being allowed to issue citations, he added.

Radar, on the other hand, operates on an electronic signal, which bounces off of a moving vehicle and records how fast that vehicle is moving. Effective range of the units is about a half mile.

Warning Given

The "mouse" picks up the presence of such a signal, trips a warning bell and allows the motorist to slow down before the radar has had a chance to record a speed.

The patrol has used radar since 1954 and is relying heavily on the use of modern mobile radar "guns" now, since it cuts down on the pursuit time of the trooper, Kohmetscher said.

"These radar units give an instant readout of speed coming or going," he added, "and the trooper doesn't have to follow and clock the car like he does with VASCAR."

Stationary radar is also used since "it allows us to stop a larger volume of vehicles," he said, "but it does tie up a few more personnel."

"Those original radar detection devices, popular a few years back, just didn't beep in enough time to allow the motorist to slow down," Kohmetscher explained as he told of a couple in western Nebraska he arrested several years ago, on different days of the week, in the same car.

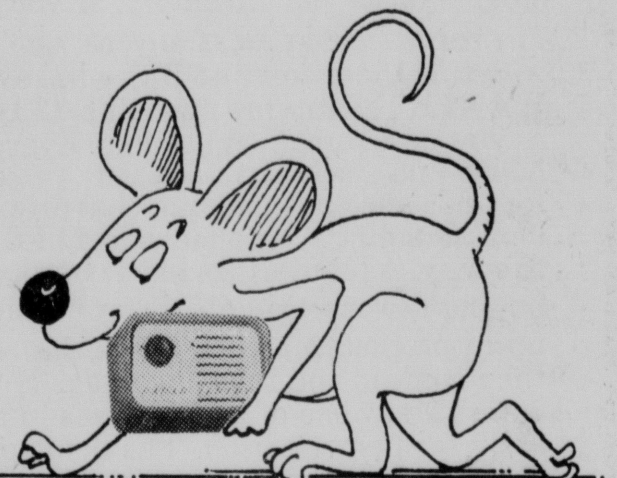

'Same Car, Same Reason'

"I stopped his man from Morrill (in western Scotts Bluff County) because this sentinel just didn't work in time. Later in the week I stopped his wife in the same car for the same reason."

Kohmetscher indicated that a radar device with a longer range will probably be developed to counter the "mouse" gimmick.

The VASCAR equipment will continue to be used since it has proven effective and can't be detected because it sends out no signals. In addition, airplane patrol of certain roads will also be used in an effort to keep tabs on speeders, he added.

Mothers Explain How To Get Angry At Children Without Insulting Them

(c) Newhouse News Service

Any man or woman who has ever spent time roaming the aisles of a supermarket has observed the supermarket mother.

She is the shrill, arm-yanking shrew who spans her child right in the middle of the laundry detergents and household cleansers. She's the one who yells through clenched teeth: "You put those cookies back, or I'll, I'll, I'll..."

Non-parents, tightly gripping their shopping cart handles, often vow: "If I ever have kids, I will be patient, full of warmth and will never, never yell at my child in public."

But when the non-parents eventually become parents, those pledges sometimes lose their strength.

Elaine Mazlish and Adele Faber both started out as idealistic mothers, determined that the mistakes of their parents wouldn't be visited on their children. It didn't take long for reality to intrude.

Enrolled In Workshop

Finding themselves complaining a great deal about the behavior of their children, they enrolled in a parent workshop taught by Dr. Haim Ginott, psychologist, lecturer and author.

At the first lecture 10 years ago, recount Mrs. Mazlish and Mrs. Faber, Ginott said, "What is it about the language I use with children that is different?"

"The language I use does not evaluate. I avoid expressions which judge a child's character or ability. I steer clear of words like 'stupid,' 'clumsy,' 'bad,' and even words like 'beautiful,' 'good,'

'wonderful,' because they are not helpful; they get in the child's way. Instead I use words that describe. I describe what I see; I describe what I feel."

The advice that the two women gained in that workshop was helpful. It changed their lives and those of their children so drastically that in 1974 they co-authored a book called "Liberated Parents, Liberated Children."

Anger Without Insult

The key to Ginott's theory is the idea of expressing anger without insult. "Let's face it," said Mrs. Mazlish, "nobody can make you madder than your own kids. We either explode or we hold it in. I used to explode with phrases like 'Why can't you ever...,' 'You'll always be a...,' 'You never...,' 'Who did that?'"

Mrs. Mazlish's right and wrong example of handling a parent-child conflict is one with which most parents can identify.

The old way: "I came into the kitchen and found that the kids had dragged out milk, crackers and peanut butter and left it smeared and scattered all over the kitchen. I screamed, 'You are slob. Can't I leave you for a moment without your making this kind of mess?'"

The new way: "No less angry, but using my newly acquired verbal skills, I said, 'I see peanut butter, crackers and milk on the table and floor. It would be helpful if you could put the things away because I am feeling very tired.'"

Mrs. Mazlish finished her dramatization and smiled. "Do you see the difference? Now I was yelling with the new way, but there were no names called, no berating, no language that wounds. You'd be surprised how grateful kids are not to be called names."

Adverse Effect

Even when parents compliment children, that can have an adverse effect, too, according to the author.

She talked about the mother whose son fixed something in their home. She rewarded him by telling him, "Darling, you're brilliant. You are fantastic!"

It would have been better if she had said, "Here we were all so upset that this wasn't working, and you fixed it. How did you ever think of how to repair it for us?"

Children are often labeled, and Mrs. Mazlish picks up some of the labels for titles of chapters in her book. There are segments on Mr. Sad Sack, The Princess, The Whiner. "Children don't have to be stuck in roles... bully, complainer, go-getter, etc., and if they are, you have to help them move out of those roles," she said.

Often, Mrs. Mazlish observed, parents try to deny the way a child feels and even tell him how he feels.

Sample Conversations

She reconstructed conversations she had heard between parents and children.

Child: (Crying) My finger! My finger hurts!

Father: It couldn't hurt. It's only a little scratch.

Or —

Child: I'm hot.

Mother: How can you feel hot; it's cool in here.

Or —

Child: Mommy, look at this little duck. Isn't it cute?

Mother: Ah, that's for a little baby. You're not interested in baby toys any more.

"What these parents were saying over and over again was: You don't mean what you say, you don't know what you know, you don't feel what you feel," Mrs. Mazlish said. What they should have said, instead, was:

"I see you have a scratch. A scratch can hurt."

Or —

"It's really hot for you in here, isn't it?"

Or —

"Ah! You like that little duck, don't you?"

The difficult part, says Mrs. Mazlish, is erasing the old tape that runs through us. It is harder to unlearn the old language than learn the new.

Using Fewer Words

It is easier for parents to stop and think before they speak, said Mrs. Mazlish, because they will be using fewer words.

"I remember one time my son John set his glass on the edge of the table. I said to him, 'John! How many times have I told you not to do that? Remember the last time when you knocked it off on the floor and it broke into thousands of pieces? Such a clumsy boy!'"

"Now, a child can easily become mother-deaf. He just tunes you out," explained Mrs. Mazlish.

"What probably would have been more effective would have been to say, 'John, the glass!'"

In their book, Mrs. Mazlish and Mrs. Faber, both of New York, observe that even if you accept a child's feelings, sometimes you have to limit his actions.

Take cookies, for example. Say you find Jimmy in the cookie jar just before dinner time. You should say, "Jimmy, I know those cookies are your favorites and that you would probably like the whole box, but we're just about ready for dinner. Now would you like one or two cookies? You decide."

Threat Avoided

Surveyed Local Grocery Prices Down

The Lincoln Star 9
Friday, January 9, 1976

The unpredictable fluctuations of grocery prices have taken turns toward the better during the past two months. According to a monthly survey at three chain stores and one locally owned store in Lincoln, the total for 17 food items declined 27 cents from November to December and then dropped another 25 cents at the beginning of January.

Survey figures show that this month's average total of $14.07 is nearly 1.8% less than December's total of $14.32. January's sum is also 66 cents or nearly 4.5% less than 1975's highest price of $14.73, recorded last September. However, the year's first survey total also reveals a 79-cent or 5.6% increase over the $13.28 total six months ago. In addition, this month's grocery price tally is $1.09 or 7.8% more than the $12.98 total one year ago and $1.42 or approximately 10.1% more than the $12.65 total two years ago. This month's decline is due primarily to lower pork prices which reached all-time highs in September and October of last year. Currently, bacon is selling at approximately $1.95 per pound, six cents less than the $2.01 price last month and a whopping 59 cents less than the $2.54 price last September. However, bacon is costing consumers 28 cents per pound more than it did one year ago. Pork chops too sported a significant decline this month. The per-pound price of loin pork chops dipped this month to $1.72, 32 cents less than the $2.04 price in December. The current price also is 40 cents less than the $2.12 cost last October, but it is still 29 cents more than $1.43 per pound price one year ago. Other meat items also showed declines this month. The price of chicken dropped seven cents per pound this month, from 68 cents in December to the current 61 cents per pound. The price of ground beef also showed a nominal decline this month, dropping from 85 cents per pound in December to January's average price of 84 cents. However, January's price is still two cents above six months ago and 13 cents more than that recorded one year ago. Round steak maintained a stable price this month, according to survey figures. Still, the $1.71 per pound price for round steak is 21 cents higher than last June's cost of $1.50 per pound and 14 cents more than the $1.57 price recorded in January, 1975. On the other hand, a 6 1/2-ounce can of tuna increased three cents this month, jumping from 66 cents in December to 69 cents in January. The current price is nine cents more than the 60 cent price recorded six months and one year ago. Other items increasing in price this month included eggs, which rose five cents, from 77 cents to 82 cents per dozen (Grade A Large). Six months ago, eggs cost approximately 60 cents per dozen, 22 cents less than the current price. Although flour showed a three-cent decline for a five-pound bag, the price for a one-pound bag of spaghetti rose three cents to 53 cents. Milk increased approximately six cents to 89 cents per half gallon since the December survey.

Grapefruit Crop Will Be Large

January and February are prime months for grapefruit, and local supermarkets will be featuring this fruit during this period. Some local stores this week advertised red grapefruit at 10 for 89 cents.

The fresh fruit — white, red and pink — is coming to market in great numbers and fine taste and may be labeled "seedless" or "seeded." Marketing analysts with the U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing service forecast the 1975-76 crop at 69.8 million boxes or 14% above last season and 9% above the most recent three-season average.

California is the only major grapefruit producing area in the country which will be below last year's production with a drop of 14%.

Florida's early crop is expected to be 12% above last year, while the Texas crop is expected to jump 51% over 1974-75's short crop. The Arizona forecast is 12% above the previous year. This will mean an even larger supply of frozen concentrated grapefruit juice and grapefruit sections.

The USDA suggests the consumer look for firm, well-shaped fruits. Thin-skinned grapefruits have more juice than the coarse-skinned ones. If a grapefruit is pointed at the stem end, it is likely to be thick-skinned. Rough, ridged or wrinkled skin can be an indication of thick skin, pulpiness and lack of juice. Skin defects such as scale, scars, thorn scratches or discoloration seldom affect eating quality. However, avoid grapefruit with such signs of decay as soft and discolored areas on the peel at the stem end, water soaked areas, loss of bright color and soft and tender peel that breaks easily with finger pressure.

Grapefruit Toppings

For each grapefruit half, use one of the following:

- 1 T. maple syrup, dash cinnamon and nutmeg
 - Mixture of 1 T. each apricot jam and peanut butter
 - Mixture of 1 T. each honey and peanut butter
 - 1 T. molasses or honey
 - 2 tsp. coffee liqueur
 - 2 T. brown sugar
 - 1 T. sherry
 - 1 1/2 tsps. each brown sugar and Kirsch
 - 1 T. creme de menthe
- Here's a salad using the grated grapefruit peel and sections:

Grapefruit Avocado Salad

(6 servings)

Crisp salad greens
2 avocados, peeled, seeded
6 medium to large grapefruit, peeled, sectioned
12 dates, pitted, cut in half lengthwise
6 walnut halves
Grapefruit French dressing
Arrange crisp salad greens on individual salad plates. Slice peeled avocados lengthwise and arrange on greens alternately with grapefruit sections. Garnish center of salad with dates and walnut half. Serve with Grapefruit French Dressing.

Grapefruit French Dressing

1/2 cup salad oil
1 tsp. fresh grated grapefruit peel
1 cup fresh squeezed grapefruit juice
2 tsps. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. paprika
Thoroughly combine ingredients; shake well before serving. Store in refrigerator. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

Learning New Tricks Is Old Dog's Decision

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to teach a 51-year-old man to speak correct English? Joe (not his real name) went only as far as the fifth grade, and his grammar is terrible.

I have corrected him in private, but he makes the same mistakes repeatedly in public, which I find very embarrassing. Most of my friends are well educated (so am I), and when Joe and I are in their company, I keep hoping he won't talk much because he is sure to say, "He don't" or, "We was."

He is a fine-looking man of good character who has made a remarkable success in business, but this one fault is too big to overlook.

I guess what I really want to know is: Can a 51-year-old man who is smart in money matters learn proper grammar at his age? Or is it too late?

JOE'S LADY FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A smart person can learn anything he wants to learn if he's sufficiently motivated. The questions here are, "Does JOE think he needs to learn? And if not, how important is this fault to YOU?"

DEAR ABBY: That letter from ALL WORE OUT IN L.A. gave my husband and me a chuckle. It was from that poor old wife who wanted to know where she could buy some salt peter to slip into her husband's food.

Salt peter must be one of those delayed-action chemicals because they gave it to my husband in World War II, and it just started to take effect last year! Sign me...

PLENTY OF SLEEP IN ALTADENA

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I'll bet many secretaries would like to have answered.

In this day of no discrimination and Women's Lib, etc., how does one address a letter to an office of mixed sexes?

It used to be correct to say, "Gentlemen," or "Sirs," even though the writer knew there were women in the office.

My boss suggested that I write to "Dear Abby" for a real good answer.

SECRETARY... OVER 40

DEAR OVER: Try "To whom it may concern." If that strikes you as being too impersonal, how about "Ladies and Gentlemen"? If that's too formal, skip the salutation (it doesn't mean anything, anyway) and get right on with the message.

When North bid six clubs, South carried on to seven — far from certain that North would make it, but deciding that the grand slam would be a good shot on balance.

South's judgment was vindicated as the contract easily came home, and the question arises whether or not the South player at the first table should have adopted the same tactics

as the South player at the second table.

It is easy enough to say — seeing all the hands — that five notrump is the winning bid, but it's not so easy to find that bid in the heat of battle when you're looking at only 13 cards. Bucking a preemptive bid is always a challenge, and you do rather well in bridge if you come up with the right answer most of the time.

Surveyed Local Grocery Prices Down

The unpredictable fluctuations of grocery prices have taken turns toward the better during the past two months.

According to a monthly survey at three chain stores and one locally owned store in Lincoln, the total for 17 food items declined 27 cents from November to December and then dropped another 25 cents at the beginning of January.

Survey figures show that this month's average total of $14.07 is nearly 1.8% less than December's total of $14.32. January's sum is also 66 cents or nearly 4.5% less than 1975's highest price of $14.73, recorded last September.

However, the year's first survey total also reveals a 79-cent or 5.6% increase over the $13.28 total six months ago. In addition, this month's grocery price tally is $1.09 or 7.8% more than the $12.98 total one year ago and $1.42 or approximately 10.1% more than the $12.65 total two years ago.

This month's decline is due primarily to lower pork prices which reached all-time highs in September and October of last year.

Currently, bacon is selling at approximately $1.95 per pound, six cents less than the $2.01 price last month and a whopping 59 cents less than the $2.54 price last September. However, bacon is costing consumers 28 cents per pound more than it did one year ago.

Pork chops too sported a significant decline this month. The per-pound price of loin pork chops dipped this month to $1.72, 32 cents less than the $2.04 price in December. The current price also is 40 cents less than the $2.12 cost last October, but it is still 29 cents more than $1.43 per pound price one year ago.

Other meat items also showed declines this month. The price of chicken dropped seven cents per pound this month, from 68 cents in December to the current 61 cents per pound.

The price of ground beef also showed a nominal decline this month, dropping from 85 cents per pound in December to January's average price of 84 cents. However, January's price is still two cents above six months ago and 13 cents more than that recorded one year ago.

Round steak maintained a stable price this month, according to survey figures. Still, the $1.71 per pound price for round steak is 21 cents higher than last June's cost of $1.50 per pound and 14 cents more than the $1.57 price recorded in January, 1975.

On the other hand, a 6 1/2-ounce can of tuna increased three cents this month, jumping from 66 cents in December to 69 cents in January. The current price is nine cents more than the 60 cent price recorded six months and one year ago.

Other items increasing in price this month included eggs, which rose five cents, from 77 cents to 82 cents per dozen (Grade A Large). Six months ago, eggs cost approximately 60 cents per dozen, 22 cents less than the current price.

Although flour showed a three-cent decline for a five-pound bag, the price for a one-pound bag of spaghetti rose three cents to 53 cents.

Milk increased approximately six cents to 89 cents per half gallon since the December survey.

Grapefruit Crop Will Be Large

January and February are prime months for grapefruit, and local supermarkets will be featuring this fruit during this period.

Some local stores this week advertised red grapefruit at 10 for 89 cents.

The fresh fruit — white, red and pink — is coming to market in great numbers and fine taste and may be labeled "seedless" or "seeded."

Marketing analysts with the U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing service forecast the 1975-76 crop at 69.8 million boxes or 14% above last season and 9% above the most recent three-season average.

California is the only major grapefruit producing area in the country which will be below last year's production with a drop of 14%.

Florida's early crop is expected to be 12% above last year, while the Texas crop is expected to jump 51% over 1974-75's short crop. The Arizona forecast is 12% above the previous year.

This will mean an even larger supply of frozen concentrated grapefruit juice and grapefruit sections.

The USDA suggests the consumer look for firm, well-shaped fruits. Thin-skinned grapefruits have more juice than the coarse-skinned ones. If a grapefruit is pointed at the stem end, it is likely to be thick-skinned.

Rough, ridged or wrinkled skin can be an indication of thick skin, pulpiness and lack of juice.

Skin defects such as scale, scars, thorn scratches or discoloration seldom affect eating quality. However, avoid grapefruit with such signs of decay as soft and discolored areas on the peel at the stem end, water soaked areas, loss of bright color and soft and tender peel that breaks easily with finger pressure.

Grapefruit Toppings

For each grapefruit half, use one of the following:

- 1 T. maple syrup, dash cinnamon and nutmeg
- Mixture of 1 T. each apricot jam and peanut butter
- Mixture of 1 T. each honey and peanut butter
- 1 T. molasses or honey
- 2 tsp. coffee liqueur
- 2 T. brown sugar
- 1 T. sherry
- 1 1/2 tps. each brown sugar and Kirsch
- 1 T. creme de menthe

Here's a salad using the grated grapefruit peel and sections:

Grapefruit Avocado Salad

(6 servings)

- Crisp salad greens
- 2 avocados, peeled, seeded
- 6 medium to large grapefruit, peeled, sectioned
- 12 dates, pitted, cut in half lengthwise
- 6 walnut halves

Grapefruit French dressing
Arrange crisp salad greens on individual salad plates. Slice peeled avocados lengthwise and arrange on greens alternately with grapefruit sections. Garnish center of salad with dates and walnut half. Serve with Grapefruit French Dressing.

Grapefruit French Dressing

- 1/2 cup salad oil
 - 1 tsp. fresh grated grapefruit peel
 - 1 cup fresh squeezed grapefruit juice
 - 2 tps. sugar
 - 1 tsp. salt
 - 1/4 tsp. paprika
- Thoroughly combine ingredients; shake well before serving. Store in refrigerator. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

Learning New Tricks Is Old Dog's Decision

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to teach a 51-year-old man to speak correct English? Joe (not his real name) went only as far as the fifth grade, and his grammar is terrible.

I have corrected him in private, but he makes the same mistakes repeatedly in public, which I find very embarrassing. Most of my friends are well educated (so am I), and when Joe and I are in their company, I keep hoping he won't talk much because he is sure to say, "He don't" or, "We was."

He is a fine-looking man of good character who has made a remarkable success in business, but this one fault is too big to overlook.

I guess what I really want to know is: Can a 51-year-old man who is smart in money matters learn proper grammar at his age? Or is it too late?

JOE'S LADY FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A smart person can learn anything he wants to learn if he's sufficiently motivated. The questions here are, "Does JOE think he needs to learn? And if not, how important is this fault to YOU?"

DEAR ABBY: That letter from ALL WORE OUT IN L.A. gave my husband and me a chuckle. It was from that poor old wife who wanted to know where she could buy some salt peter to slip into her husband's food.

Salt peter must be one of those delayed-action chemicals because they gave it to my husband in World War II, and it just started to take effect last year! Sign me...

PLENTY OF SLEEP IN ALTADENA

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I'll bet many secretaries would like to have answered.

In this day of no discrimination and Women's Lib, etc., how does one address a letter to an office of mixed sexes?

It used to be correct to say, "Gentlemen," or "Sirs," even though the writer knew there were women in the office.

My boss suggested that I write to "Dear Abby" for a real good answer.

SECRETARY... OVER 40

DEAR OVER: Try "To whom it may concern." If that strikes you as being too impersonal, how about "Ladies and Gentlemen"? If that's too formal, skip the salutation (it doesn't mean anything, anyway) and get right on with the message.

There is no doubt that opening preemptive bids, properly used, pay off in the long run. But when to make a preemptive bid, and how high up the ladder to go when choosing the bid, is largely a matter of judgment.

Let's examine this deal from a team of four championship. At the first table, West opened the bidding with four hearts. This was somewhat daring, considering the vulnerability, but West came from the school that believes you should preempt as high as possible when you do preempt.

North doubled and South responded six diamonds, which ended the auction. Declarer easily made seven.

South's five notrump bid asked partner to choose one of the minor suits as trump. South was afraid to make a cuebid of five hearts for fear that North would leap to six or seven spades.

When North bid six clubs, South carried on to seven — far from certain that North would make it, but deciding that the grand slam would be a good shot on balance.

South's judgment was vindicated as the contract easily came home, and the question arises whether or not the South player at the first table should have adopted the same tactics

as the South player at the second table.

It is easy enough to say — seeing all the hands — that five notrump is the winning bid, but it's not so easy to find that bid in the heat of battle when you're looking at only 13 cards. Bucking a preemptive bid is always a challenge, and you do rather well in bridge if you come up with the right answer most of the time.

Committee Puts Off Street Widening Decision

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A controversial decision on the Lincoln street network for the next 25 years was delayed Thursday by the Officials Committee.

Any street network plan chosen will indicate which Lincoln streets need widening before the year 2000 in order to keep only a moderate level of congestion on most Lincoln streets.

Street widening has been a controversial issue since land owner resistance recently defeated any attempts to widen 48th and Holdrege Streets.

The Officials Committee (composed of the mayor, Lancaster County Board chairman and state engineer) is one link the street network plan must go through before it is adopted as a part of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Comprehensive Plan for future growth.

Three networks were explained to the Officials Committee and the more than 25 citizens and elected officials attending the meeting.

The three networks were based on:

—Arterials at one-mile intervals.

—Arterials at closer intervals plus a greater use of one-way paired streets.

—Increasing automobile occupancy from 1.4 people per car to 1.9 people per car.

And all the three plans showed which streets would have to be widened in order to keep Lincoln traffic at moderate congestion, with some stop and go traffic.

Certain assumptions about population and traffic patterns were used in coming up with the street network. They included a year 2000 population of 325,000 for the county — about double today's population — twice as many cars on the road as today, and growth of the city to the south, north and west.

The planners also assumed that bus ridership would double from about 2% of the people riding busses to about 4%.

The street network plan which showed the least number of streets to be widened was the one which assumed that there would be more people riding in each car — or increased car pooling.

But some attending the meeting questioned the feasibility of actually increasing the number of people per car.

This alternative was based on 2.65 people per car on trips to work and home rather than the current 1.25 people per car.

And this would mean that 75% of the workers would have to be carpooling, said Robert Holsinger, city traffic engineer.

The Chamber of Commerce supports "any reasonable way to increase auto occupancy," said John DuPont from the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, but he warned that the policymakers must weigh the costs of making an error.

If the improvements in the streets are not made and then the policymakers find out that car occupancy can't be increased, what will be the cost of that delay, socially and economically, he asked.

Recent Goals and Policy Committee energy discussions have leaned toward a street system dependant upon increasing the car occupancy rate.

But the Technical Committee (composed of the men who work on city, county and state road planning) has selected as its first choices the street plans based on current driving habits — the plans with the most widenings.

All three plans show some new streets plus a constructed West Bypass.

The plan based on more people riding in each car (1.9 per car occupancy average) shows street widenings only on Lincoln's perimeter. These widenings include:

U.S. 6 from Fletcher to I-80.
N.W. 48th from O St. almost to U.S. 34.

Superior/Havelock from 56th west to HW 34 area.

Highway 2 from about Yankee Hill Rd. north to Ploneers.

Pioneers from Highway 2 west to 14th St.
Old Cheney Rd. from Folsom east to 70th St.
70th St. from Highway 2 north to about Van Dorn.

Van Dorn from 48th to 56th.

27th St. from Superior/Havelock to Holdrege.

The plan based on one-mile arterials shows the same widenings as the above plan plus these additions:

N.W. 48th all the way to U.S. 34.
West O from N.W. 48th west.
East O from 84th east.

Van Dorn from about Folsom east to 56th.

A St. from the new West Bypass east to 70th.

Holdrege from 4th to 84th.

A street between A and O (presumably Randolph or J) from 27th east to 56th.

84th from O to U.S. 6.

70th from U.S. 6 to O and from about Van Dorn to Highway 2.

48th St. from Superior/Havelock to Adams and from O to Old Cheney Rd. south.

Fletcher from about the U.S. 34 area to 4th.

4th from Fletcher to Holdrege.

27th from about I-80 to Holdrege.

33rd from Adams to Holdrege.

56th from I-80 north and from Old Cheney Rd. south.

The plan which includes a greater use of one-way pairs and additional arterials at a more than one-mile interval has most of the same street widenings as the above plan with these exceptions:

48th St. would not require widening.

A St. from about 4th east would not require widening.

Holdrege between 40th and 4th would not require widening.

Van Dorn would be widened only from Coddington east to about 4th St.

Street widenings create horizontal slums, Richard Harnsberger told the committee.

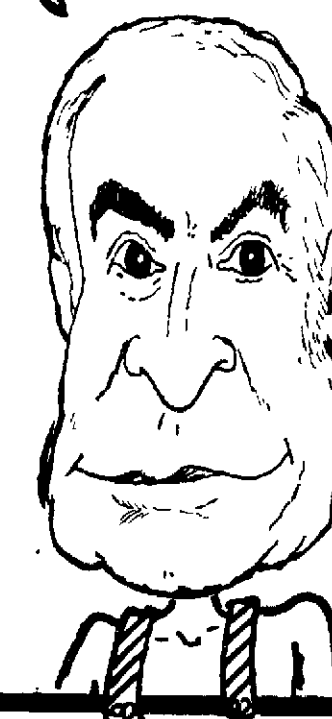

He suggested that if streets must be widened then right of way should be taken along one side of the street rather than "coming as close as you do to the houses on both sides of the street."

This would mean buying up more right of way than is necessary and buying homes rather than just lawn. But the social cost and disruption would be less, he suggested.

The committee delayed any decision on the street network plans until January, after the Goals and Policy Committee has made its decisions on energy and transportation.

Planning Commission Report As Congested As City Traffic

Congestion got a public airing in Lincoln Thursday night.

The crowded streets and the oft cumbersome semantics of such governmental documents as the proposed energy and transportation goals and policies of the City-County Planning Commission, were discussed at a public hearing Thursday night.

It is hoped that the limited input from non-official sources and a lengthy battle with words will speed the completion of the City-County Comprehensive Plan, originally scheduled for completion last October but now expected to be finalized June 30 by a City Council decree.

Problems of the average Lincolite in getting to work were a major concern of the proposals. The merits of wider streets and regulating the number of occupants in any vehicle in the downtown area are two possibilities.

Reduced speed limits, reduced wheel tax for smaller cars to encourage their use and county routes for city buses to make the transportation system more profitable, also are mentioned.

Then there's the congested matter of different versions of the proposals which the planning commission had to wade through. Chairman George Williamson apologized to people at the hearing for "our (the commission's) apparent confusion caused by all the different documents."

There's an original planning commission proposal, a version recommended by the Goals and Policies Committee, a version amended by the City Council, an amendment to the original, and so on.

After a two hour hearing, in which such momentous changes as "effectuate" with the word "achieve" were made, all of the various versions were combined and accepted by the commission. The plan was then adopted, and recommended for adoption by the City Council and the County Board.

Penal Complex Inmate Charged With Game Bets

Omaha (AP) — A Nebraska Penal Complex prisoner has been charged with illegally placing football game bets by telephone, apparently from the penitentiary.

A misdemeanor warrant signed by Omaha Municipal Court Judge Paul Hickman charges James Willy, 31, with two counts of gambling.

Joseph Vitek, state corrections director, said officials are investigating the matter.

Willy is serving a three-to-five-year sentence for a Sarpy County supermarket robbery in January of 1974 and for violation of probation.

Police alleged that Willy's voice was recorded during a court approved wiretap.

Officers said Willy placed two collect calls to an Omaha telephone which was being tapped between Dec. 24-28. Judge Hickman signed the warrant Dec. 30.

Vitek said Willy was confined in the trusty dormitory at the penitentiary at the time.

Omaha police said Willy's voice allegedly was identified by officers of the Sarpy County sheriff, who were assisting in the gambling investigation which led to charges against several persons.

Defense Fund For Deputy Achieves Goal Of $2,400

The Rod Loos Defense Fund has reached its goal of $2,400, according to Chief Deputy Del Ziemann.

Loos is the deputy who killed Sherrell Lewis with a shotgun blast through the front storm door of his home during a drug raid last September.

Reports of officers at the scene vary on whether Lewis was setting down a .22-caliber rifle he had been carrying as he walked toward the door.

Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners declined to file charges in the case. Federal authorities still have not made a decision about possible civil rights charges more than three months after the death.

F. Sands Enters Guilty Plea

A former manager of radio stations KECK and KHAT Thursday pleaded guilty to one count of embezzling money from the stations.

Sentencing of Fred Sands, also known as Fred Scott, was postponed in Lancaster District Court pending a presentence investigation.

Sands earlier had been charged with three counts of embezzlement, but the charges were later amended to one count covering the same period of time the three had.

The amount involved in the embezzlement had never been determined, but station personnel have told authorities the amount may be as high as $100,000. However a suit filed by the owner of the stations, J-P Enterprises, seeks only $15,000.

Sands was manager of the stations from 1968 until April, 1975. He now lives in St. Paul, Minn.

Gas Rate Services Set Friday For Mrs. McKelvie

A 2.1% rate increase effective Dec. 27 for non-interruptible gas customers has been canceled, Cengas officials announced Thursday.

In a routine review, the Federal Power Commission (FPC) reduced a rate increase approved in October 1974 by 2.1%, the amount of the planned increase for December, a spokesman said.

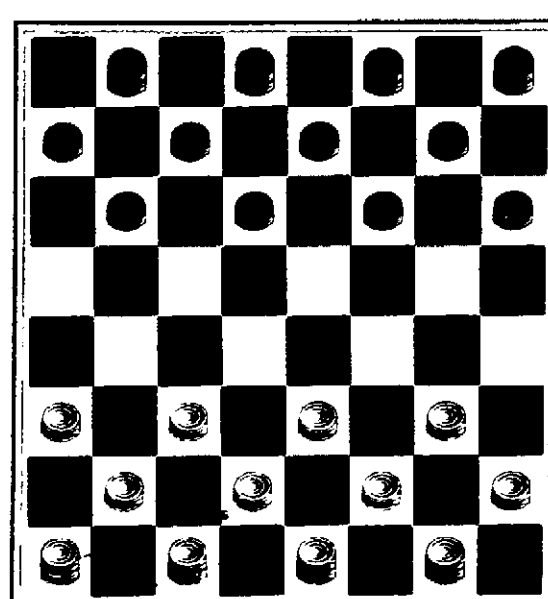

Therefore, the December increase will be dropped, leaving rates at the level in effect since Oct. 27, 1975, said C. L. Wilcox, Lincoln division manager.

Any amounts collected in excess of Commission-approved rates during the 14-month period will be refunded to Cengas customers as a gas cost credit on monthly statements beginning in late spring, he said.

The FPC order did not affect interruptible service. Interruptible rates will be increased 2.8 cents per thousand cubic feet above the planned Dec. 27 adjustment, Wilcox said.

Ozark Sets Record

St. Louis (AP) — Ozark Air Lines set a record Dec. 19 for the most passengers the airline ever boarded in a single day, 14,723, said Edward J. Crane, president.

CARRIERS ARE MAKING THE RIGHT MOVE

Most parents are born worriers—particularly when it comes to the early-teens in the family. Two persistent questions: Where are the youngsters? What are they doing?

These questions have easy answers in families where there are newspaper carriers. While devoting time and energy to his (or her) own business, the carrier is not only in a known place, he is doing something worthwhile and constructive. He is making the right move toward becoming a self-reliant, dependable, responsible individual. The kind of person parents don't need to worry about!

Being a good carrier isn't always a snap. There's hard work involved. And, along the way, small sacrifices must be made in order to get the paper to customers promptly and in good condition. At these times the carrier may need a little encouragement: a slap on the back, a reassuring word or two. And the carrier usually gets it. Parents give that encouragement because they share a great deal of pride in a youngster they don't have to worry about!

CARRIERS ARE MAKING THE RIGHT MOVE

Most parents are born worriers—particularly when it comes to the early-teens in the family. Two persistent questions: Where are the youngsters? What are they doing?

These questions have easy answers in families where there are newspaper carriers. While devoting time and energy to his (or her) own business, the carrier is not only in a known place, he is doing something worthwhile and constructive. He is making the right move toward becoming a self-reliant, dependable, responsible individual. The kind of person parents don't need to worry about!

Being a good carrier isn't always a snap. There's hard work involved. And, along the way, small sacrifices must be made in order to get the paper to customers promptly and in good condition. At these times the carrier may need a little encouragement: a slap on the back, a reassuring word or two. And the carrier usually gets it. Parents give that encouragement because they share a great deal of pride in a youngster they don't have to worry about!

Koch Will Amend Bill On Primary Proposal

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

In an effort to blunt party opposition, Sen. Jerry Koch Thursday said he will amend his September primary proposal to salvage Nebraska's presidential primary election and prohibit crossover voting.

The bill, LB120, strongly opposed in its present form by both political parties, is scheduled for debate in the Legislature next Thursday.

Koch's amended plan would still move the state primary election from May to September, but it would provide for a separate presidential primary election in May in presidential election years.

Without such amendments, LB120 would wipe out the presidential primary altogether. A September primary election would follow the national party

Delegate System Eased

Elimination of the presidential primary would also put an end to Nebraska's system of electing delegates to the national conventions.

"I can understand that Nebraskans might feel left out of the decision-making process without a presidential primary," Koch noted in an interview.

"Now the presidential candidates come to Nebraska for the primary, and that's important to a lot of people."

If Koch's amended proposal wins legislative approval, Nebraska would hold three elections in presidential election years — a May presidential primary, a September state primary and the November general election.

The Ralston senator will also offer amendments to the bill removing the proposal allowing registered party members to choose the other party's ballot in a primary election.

Crossover Voting Opposed

That system of crossover voting is strongly opposed by the political parties.

"They fear it might be misused to disrupt their own primary," Koch noted.

But the amended LB120 would allow registered independents to choose either party's ballot in a primary election. Independents may now vote only on the non-partisan ballot in primaries.

"I feel so strongly about the need to make our election process more compact that I am willing to make these compromises," Koch said.

"I think they will offer all of us some improvements."

Koch said there are a number of advantages to shortening the campaign period between the primary and general election by moving the primary to September.

'Would Arouse Interest'

"I think it would stimulate citizen participation by arousing the people's interest in elections to a greater degree," he said.

"It would keep the momentum going."

Political activity and interest now fall off sharply during the six months between elections, he said.

"I also think a September primary would make the candidates more credible in terms of the issues they define," Koch said.

What candidates say in March and April before the May primary election may change sharply by the time they face the voters again in November, he noted.

The shorter period between elections should also reduce campaign time and expenses, he said.

"I hope these changes will remove the parties' opposition," Koch said.

The bill would not alter this year's primary elections in May, but would move the state primary to September beginning in 1978.

Chambers Bill Would Abolish Death Penalty

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers introduced legislation Thursday to abolish the state's death penalty.

Under law, the death penalty is allowed in cases of first degree murder.

Chambers has attempted to repeal the death penalty on several previous occasions.

Guest Statute Repeal Bill Gets 2nd Round Approval

By The Associated Press

The Legislature gave 27-18 second round approval Thursday to a bill that would make insurance companies liable for injuries to a driver's nonpaying passengers.

The bill, LB491, would repeal Nebraska's so-called guest statute, which exempts a driver from liability for the safety of his passengers.

Because a driver is exempt from liability, his insurance company does not have to pay and injured persons sometimes go without compensation, critics contend.

Sen. Jack Mills of Big Springs sponsored the bill after a friend was unable to collect for a serious injury.

The legislature failed to advance the bill Wednesday on a 23-23 vote, but Mills picked up the additional votes he needed Thursday.

Under current law an injured passenger might collect damages only if he can prove the driver was grossly negligent, through drunkenness or recklessness.

Fowler Plan Let Cities Use Tax For Buses

State Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln wants the Unicameral to let cities use their share of state gasoline tax revenues to buy buses.

Fowler called his LB695 a sequel to last year's legislation authorizing state funding of transit programs at the local level.

This year's measure would allow use of a city's gas tax share for purchase of buses and the construction of bicycle paths and walkways over city streets.

Bills introduced in the Nebraska Legislature Thursday:

LB68—Raise limit from $2,000 to $5,000 on the amount of the contracts for which county officers can bid, George.

LB67—Make penal ombudsmen accountable to state ombudsmen rather than Corrections Department administration, Clark.

LB68—Provide for appointment rather than election of water commissioner in Columbus and Norfolk, Dworak.

LB69—Establish a civil service commission for Sarpy County, F. Lewis.

LB69—Appropriate $110 million general fund money plus other funds for higher education, Appropriations.

LB 691—Appropriate more than $240 million in general fund money plus other funds for state agencies, Appropriations.

LB62—Prescribes that the Board of Nursing shall set fees at a level sufficient to cover the board's operational costs, Health.

LB 693—Encourage establishment of community centers for activities and allow county site acquisition for building, Mares.

LB68—Require a hearing for parents or guardian of retarded person about to be de-institutionalized, Burrows.

LB65—Allow cities to sue for their share of gasoline tax revenues to purchase buses for mass transit use, Fowler.

LB66—Allow Douglas County to borrow money at more than the current 3 per cent limit to solve cash flow problems, Savage.

LB67—Increase annual salaries of judges, Dworak and Savage.

LB68—Allow voter registration by mail and make polling places accessible for physically handicapped, Fowler.

LB69—Add the commissioner of education to the list of state officials to which the attorney general issues written legal opinions, Hasebrook.

LB70—Allow retail liquor sales to people in cars such as physically handicapped and prohibit "blackballing ban" on sales of liquor from all distributors when a retailer owes one distributor, Simpson.

LB70—Create a wine and beer license category for retail liquor outlets such as small restaurants, Dworak.

LB72—Medical malpractice bill backed by the Nebraska Medical Association, Schmit.

LB74—Expand notary public capabilities to include elective officers or directors of insurance firms, credit unions and credit associations, Stoney.

LB75—Change membership of the State Personnel Board, Koch.

LB76-707—Technical. Internal revisions of state statutes to comply with criminal code legislation previously introduced, Judiciary except Sys.

Unicam Puts No-Fault Insurance Bill On Hold

By United Press International

A no-fault automobile insurance bill introduced during last year's Unicameral session is still alive, but the senator who wanted it so badly last year is no longer sure of its value.

Before the lawmakers once again for a second round decision was LB394.

Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City said the value of the proposal last year was to get the jump on federal no-fault insurance legislation. Bills pending in Congress then allowed for such jumps by the state.

Murphy said the latest no-fault bills no longer allow for state involvement and therefore he's not sure state legislation would be of any value now.

But on the other hand, he said action in Washington is by no means over and "I'm not sure what the next move will be."

On that basis, Murphy asked that the bill be simply held in place until the contents of federal legislation are known. If the state still can get involved then the bill could be brought up again, he reasoned.

There were no objections.

Bill Would Let Parents Appeal Panel's Decision

State Sen. George Burrows of Adams introduced a bill in the Unicameral Thursday he said is designed to make sure parental wishes are near the top of the list in carrying out provisions of the out-of-court settlement in the Beatrice State Home case.

"I want the Legislature to make a commitment to the parents," Burrows said in introducing LB694.

Under the bill, a parent who feels his child has not been assigned to the program, community-based or state institution, best suited needs and interests, may appeal through administrative channels in the State Institutions Department and ultimately to the courts.

Under the Beatrice Home settlement, a move designed to cut the institutional population by placing as many retarded as possible in community programs, a placement panel will decide which patients go where and which ones stay at the home.

Burrows said he introduced the bill because he was afraid a "placement panel might override the parents" when the parents are in the right.

He also said he wanted to make sure there was a means of appeal so there won't be any placements of a "hasty or ill-thought-out" nature which would stand simply because they couldn't be challenged.

Senator Plans To Tackle District Election

State Sen. William Nichol is "pretty sure" that he will introduce legislation to return Omaha school board elections to citywide status, scrapping the district concept.

The second-year legislator from Scottsbluff wants to tackle the controversial school board election question even though he lives in a panhandle down at the opposite end of the state from Omaha.

Bill Shows Partisan Split In Unicam

By The Associated Press

The partisan issue of postcard registration of voters hit the technically nonpartisan Nebraska Unicameral Thursday.

State Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln, a registered Democrat, introduced LB698, which would allow state residents eligible to vote to register by mail.

The issue cropped up during the 1975 session when an amendment calling for mail registration was slipped into another bill dealing with election matters.

"The amendment stayed alive only one day, being killed by a vote tally that showed there are partisan roots in the nonpartisan Unicameral."

Of the 49 legislators, 32 are registered Republicans and 18 are Democrats, while one is independent. The vote breakdown last year on voter registration by mail reflected the GOP dominance.

Democrats in the legislature said during debate that Republicans are afraid the Democratic party would benefit in swelled vote potential at the polls if mail registration became legal.

Fowler's bill also would require that polling places and voting booths be constructed so physically handicapped persons will have ease of access.

Vet Students Could Enroll In Out-Of-State Colleges

By United Press International

State Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said Thursday he has been advised the University of Pennsylvania and Cornell University next fall could enroll at least 10 Nebraska veterinary medicine students if qualified applicants are available.

He said he recently visited with an official in the Veterinary Science Department at the University of Nebraska and was told between 50 and 60 pre-vet students have applied for admission for approximately 25 positions at midwest universities on a contractual basis.

"If the Nebraska Legislature should choose to fund these additional 10 or possibly a few more positions, we must do so at an early date," Schmit said in a letter delivered to Unicameral members. "The deadline for applications at these institutions has already passed."

But he said the deans of both the Pennsylvania and Cornell schools "have assured me that they would be willing to accept applications from Nebraska if these applications could be received at an early date."

He said several other states also have indicated an interest in filling these positions "but both schools are holding those positions open until they hear from Nebraska."

The cost at Pennsylvania, a private school, would be $8,000 annually for the four-year course. At Cornell, a "statutory" university, tuition would be between $4,200 and $4,500 annually for students entering under contract arrangements between the states of Nebraska and New York. Historically, Cornell has accepted 20% of its students from outside New York.

Schmit is chairman of the legislature's agriculture committee which conducted an interim study on ways of getting more Nebraskans educated as veterinarians.

Pawn Brokers, Special Deputies Targets Of Bills

By The Associated Press

The Unicameral Thursday gave first round approval to Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' plans to crack down on pawn brokers who fence stolen merchandise for burglars and volunteer special deputies who abuse their right to carry guns.

Chambers' LB431, voted 32-0 preliminary approval, would require pawn brokers to take color photographs of individuals pawning merchandise.

"A pawn broker and many people who pawn operate as fence and thief," Chambers said.

He said the photos were needed to identify burglars who give false names when pawning merchandise.

The bill also says that individuals do not have to pay pawn brokers if they find their stolen merchandise in pawn shops.

Chambers' other bill, LB432, requires that appointments of volunteer special deputies be approved by the county board.

The bill, voted 26-9 preliminary approval, allows special deputies to be used only during times of emergency declared by the sheriff.

"There are over 200 of these critics running loose in Douglas County," Chambers said, citing incidents when the unpaid volunteers pulled guns on citizens.

However, the strongest criticism did not come from Chambers.

"I know quite a few of them up there and some of them should be weeded out," said Omaha Sen. Tom Fitzgerald. "In my opinion we have quite a few Keystone Cops up there."

Below-Cost Liquor May Be Stopped

The legislature amended a bill Thursday to prohibit retailers from selling liquor below cost.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp was pushing for a mandatory 15% markup on liquor last year, but Gov. J.J. Exon said he would veto such a measure.

DeCamp said the amendment offered Thursday was a compromise, and he circulated a letter from the governor in which Exon said he would sign a bill that would prohibit selling liquor below cost if the 15% markup was removed.

The legislature amended LB204 on a 29-15 vote.

DeCamp said he wanted to prohibit grocery and drug stores from selling liquor below cost simply to draw customers into their establishment.

On a motion by Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich the bill was tabled until Jan. 14 so that it could be reprinted with amendments.

At Cornell, a "statutory" university, tuition would be between $4,200 and $4,500 annually for students entering under contract arrangements between the states of Nebraska and New York. Historically, Cornell has accepted 20% of its students from outside New York.

Schmit is chairman of the legislature's agriculture committee which conducted an interim study on ways of getting more Nebraskans educated as veterinarians.

Pawn Brokers, Special Deputies Targets Of Bills

By The Associated Press

The Unicameral Thursday gave first round approval to Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' plans to crack down on pawn brokers who fence stolen merchandise for burglars and volunteer special deputies who abuse their right to carry guns.

Chambers' LB431, voted 32-0 preliminary approval, would require pawn brokers to take color photographs of individuals pawning merchandise.

"A pawn broker and many people who pawn operate as fence and thief," Chambers said.

He said the photos were needed to identify burglars who give false names when pawning merchandise.

The bill also says that individuals do not have to pay pawn brokers if they find their stolen merchandise in pawn shops.

Chambers' other bill, LB432, requires that appointments of volunteer special deputies be approved by the county board.

The bill, voted 26-9 preliminary approval, allows special deputies to be used only during times of emergency declared by the sheriff.

"There are over 200 of these critters running loose in Douglas County," Chambers said, citing incidents when the unpaid volunteers pulled guns on citizens.

However, the strongest criticism did not come from Chambers.

"I know quite a few of them up there and some of them should be weeded out," said Omaha Sen. Tom Fitzgerald. "In my opinion we have quite a few Keystone Cops up there."

Below-Cost Liquor May Be Stopped

The legislature amended a bill Thursday to prohibit retailers from selling liquor below cost.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp was pushing for a mandatory 15% markup on liquor last year, but Gov. J.J. Exon said he would veto such a measure.

DeCamp said the amendment offered Thursday was a compromise, and he circulated a letter from the governor in which Exon said he would sign a bill that would prohibit selling liquor below cost if the 15% markup was removed.

The legislature amended LB204 on a 29-15 vote.

DeCamp said he wanted to prohibit grocery and drug stores from selling liquor below cost simply to draw customers into their establishment.

On a motion by Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich the bill was tabled until Jan. 14 so that it could be reprinted with amendments.

Scott Hall Rent On SeTech Agenda

The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area Board has scheduled action Jan. 20 on paying rent to use part of the Fairbury campus dormitory as faculty offices.

Chairman Robert Wekesser of Lincoln, in a preliminary discussion about Scott Hall this week, agreed with SeTech Area President Robert S. Eicher, saying it seems fair to "apply the going rate for students" as the office lease bill.

That formula would generate almost $10,000 annually in income, applicable to the debt owed the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Fairbury faculty members now occupy 13 rooms in the dorm.

Scott Hall yearly debt service is $32,000 toward the $543,000 total owed. But under-capacity residency — caused partly when the football program was dropped — produced insufficient income to pay the HUD bill, and SeTech owes $66,500 by the end of 1976.

Dr. Eicher said the college might be able to "make partial payment" soon, noting a $3,900 profit this year, despite occupancy ranging around 40. The dorm has room for 128 students, according to the Fairbury campus annual report.

In-the-black operations resulted partly from food service profits, Eicher said.

Staying Ahead Budget Stressed As Tool For Getting Out Of Debt

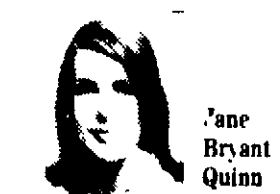

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Greater New York, which helps people get out of debt, now has a waiting list of 3,000. Similar waiting lists are reported by counseling bureaus in other parts of the country. And now that it's January, the budget counselors expect a fresh onslaught on people desperately trying to get their finances under control.

Why January? Because the splurge of Christmas spending is often the last straw that breaks a family's belief in its ability to stay one step ahead of the bills, says Arthur Joice, head of the New York Credit Counseling Service. On a cold winter morning, after the Christmas tree has been put out with the trash, it suddenly dawns on people that the pig is up.

You can try to turn for help to one of the 174 free (or virtually free) credit counseling services associated with the National Foundation for Consumer Credit (for a list of their offices, write to NFCC at 1819 H St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006). You might be lucky enough to find a place that can help you right away. And even where there's a waiting list, the bureau will often give fast help to emergency cases, such as a debtor threatened with foreclosure or repossession.

If you have to wait for help, there's one important thing you can do for yourself. Every credit counselor I've ever talked to has stressed over and over again the importance of a budget as a tool for getting out of debt. If you can manage a budget successfully, you won't need credit counseling at all.

Jane Bryant Quinn

Many people tell me that budgeting nowadays is impossible. "Something always comes up," they say. "Just when you get $200 or $300 in the bank, you have a car accident or the insurance premiums go up, and your savings are wiped out. No one can budget for these contingencies."

It's true that no one, living right on the edge of his income and even over the edge, can budget for inflation and accidents. But that's exactly why you shouldn't be living on the edge. Credit counselors know that with just a little discipline and guts, you can get your spending in order even in these inflationary times.

Consider, for example, how much you pay every year in interest — on installment purchases, revolving charge accounts, loans from banks and finance companies. If you had all that money to spend on yourself, by how much would it increase your spending power? Ten percent? Fifteen per cent?

The key to getting your financial house in order is to live like a penniless hermit for 12 or 18 months, until you've crawled out from under your debts. The first three or four months are the hardest, after that, habit sets in. Once you've rid yourself of all those burdensome interest payments and monthly calls on your paycheck, you'll be able to live even better than you do now, at no additional cost.

When you know the agony is only going to last 12 months or so, it's not too difficult to make really spartan cuts. Adults can usually make do with last year's clothes for another year, both husband and wife can agree to cut out a favorite entertainment, and close both eyes to any new "need" that pops up; you can take an oath to buy only at sales and discount houses. (Credit counselors say people often don't follow even the most elementary rules of smart shopping.)

If you're really in over your head, you'll have to consider getting rid of big expenses. For example, it's usually cheaper to hire taxis when you need them than to keep a second car.

But none of this will work unless you make a budget. The budget tells you how much and how long you have to cut. And keeping up with it weekly or monthly shows you how well you're meeting your goals.

Once the big debts are off your back, you can start making regular payments to savings, perhaps through automatic savings plans. Having savings is the only way you can absorb contingencies, like auto accidents and a boost in your insurance premiums.

It can be done. Hundreds of thousands of people do it successfully. Credit counselors say firmly that people who laugh at budgets and say they're impossible just aren't serious about trying.

Stock Market Keeps Rally In High Gear

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market kept its early-1976 rally in high gear Thursday with a sharp advance that carried the Dow Jones industrial average to its first close above 900 in more than two years.

The Dow average of 30 blue chip industrials rose 9.29 to 907.98, finishing in the 900s for the first time since Nov. 9, 1973, when it closed at 908.41.

That left the Dow with an advance of 55.57 points for the first five sessions of the new year.

The average's best gain ever for a calendar week was 73.61 points in early October of 1974.

New York Stock Exchange volume came to 29.03 million shares, down from the near-record 33.17 million Wednesday but still extremely heavy by usual standards.

Gamers outpaced losers 993 to 509 among the 1,902 issues traded on the Big Board.

For the second straight day, the rally had to contend with periodic waves of profit taking. But as on Wednesday, prices were in an uptrend again as the closing bell sounded.

The Dow's peak level of the session was reached early in the afternoon, when it showed an advance of nearly 15 points.

Brokers pointed to a continuing air of encouragement over signs of a downward trend in interest rates.

Chase Manhattan of New York and a few other banks reduced their prime lending rates during the day from 7 1/4 to 7 per cent, matching a cut posted Wednesday by Cleveland Trust.

Hog Prices Turn Higher

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Based on small numbers, hogs turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Thursday, while a light run produced little activity in the cattle pens and sheep were nominal.

The day's hog run was estimated at only about 3,000 head. After a slow opening, barrows and gilts turned fairly active.

Weights under 240-pounds trended mainly 50-to-75 cents higher than Wednesday's best, while butchers weighing in from 240-to-300-pounds turned steady to 50-cents higher, and heavier weights were called 50-cents to $1.00 higher.

There were only about 600 cattle and calves on offer, with scattered steer sales called moderately active and steady.

There were not enough heifers on offer to attract a market test, and cows trended steady to 50-cents lower in moderately active trade.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Livestock quotations Thursday: Hogs: 3,000, barrows and gilts fairly active; weights under 240-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher than Wednesday's best; 240-to-300-pounds, steady to 50 cents higher; 300-to-400-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 400-to-500-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 500-to-600-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 600-to-700-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 700-to-800-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 800-to-900-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 900-to-1,000-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher; 1,000-to-1,100-pounds, 50 to 75 cents higher;

San Francisco — Whatever happened to love, luv? Denis de Bougemont, a sentimental Swiss, was sitting around a Bierstube when this came to him like a flash of lightning. He spent the rest of his life studying the tender passion.

(Do journalists still write about "tender passion?" Do scribes still scribble about "the fairer sex?" Probably not. But this is a year of nostalgia.)

Denis found love was invented in the age of chivalry. Year 1150. The chair was invented in year 1200. Thus chivalrous knights now had a lap for the fairer sex to sit one.

("Careful, wench. These tin pants just came back from the cleaners.")

Hippety-hopped down Union Street the other noon looking for a watercress and carrot sandwich. This is the Street of Dreams. In the golden years of the Gold Rush there was a pond out here. It was called washerwoman's Lagoon.

Now the street is full of herb growers and gurus of all sizes. Mitt readers and tea leaf watchers. Nut bread makers and nut bread eaters.

It has jeans to fit all sitdown situations.

There are juice bars for vegetarians. Whiskey bars for the unsaved.

It's some street.

The most successful place is Perry's where Alimony Row sits on barstools, staring moodily into their thick bar glasses. It is Friday.

Black Friday they called it at San Quentin prison.

Friday was the day the state of California executed the court's order by dropping the condemned man at the end of a rope. It was in a bare room painted robin's egg blue in the furniture factory.

Later the state put in the apple green gas chamber. It was more humane they said. Clint Duffy was warden and around the Big Yard the chamber was known as "Duffy's fireless cooker." They continued to carry out the death penalty on Friday. It was a bad way to start the weekend.

Denis de Rougemont, a man for all seasons, discovered that, while chivalry invented love, it took troubadours to make it popular.

Troubadours walked around the country whacking their zithers and singing of love. The modern troubadours strum their guitars on Union Street. You see them on the outbound highways, guitars on their backs. Thumbing a ride to the Big Rock Candy Mountain.

Troubadours saw the knights saving the fairer sex and they invented country music for the new lifestyle.

"A Knight To Remember."
"The Fire-breathing Dragon Rag."
"I left My Heart In My Spare Tin Suit." They sang: "Don't Let That Damsel Catch On Fire."

Love prospered. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations gives love two full poetic pages. Love has lasting qualities.

On Alimony Row at Perry's the walking wounded speak of love gone aground in the stormy waters of matrimony.

"So she took my tropical fish and flushed them down the toilet."

"I could only figure a way to get in. I'd get my two cases of Musigny '67 back. But now she's changed the locks."

"I can't even get visiting rights with the dogs."

Denis de "The Menace?" wrote a book on the history of love. He spoke well of it.

Love is the sweetest thing," said Denis. Or maybe it was the song writers DeSylva, Henderson and Brown. Anyway it was somebody. An optimist for all seasons.

Gilbert (Not Miller) Leads Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Journeyman Gibby Gilbert fashioned a six-under-par 66 that combined Thursday with a man-made lake to interrupt—at least briefly—Johnny Miller's fantastic string of successes in the Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, who had won both the Tucson and Phoenix Opens the last two years, had a shot at the lead until late in the bright, warm, sunny day when he pumped his tee shot into a lake that borders the right side of the 18th fairway on this long, otherwise dry and arid desert layout.

The errant shot on the final hole led to a horrendous, triple-bogey seven that ruined Miller's round and gave him a score of two-under-par 70—four strokes off the pace—in the first round of play on the 1976 pro tour.

The group at 68 included Phil Rodgers, Curtis Sifford, Frank Conner and Larry Nelson.

Lee Trevino said he "was lucky to shoot par" 72 on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course. He three-putted three of the massive greens, dyed a bright green for the benefit of the national television cameras that will cover the final two days of competition. "It usually takes me four-five tournaments to get my game together," Trevino said with a shrug.

British Open champion Tom

Watson had a shot at the lead but scored a triple-bogey seven on the 15th hole and three-putted the 18th for a 70.

Arnold Palmer struggled and stumbled to 77 that left him little hope of qualifying for the final two rounds of play. He didn't make a single birdie and three-putted four times.

Jack Nicklaus is not competing in this tournament that serves as the kickoff event for the 10-month, 44-tournament circuit.

Adams, Meridian Mudecas Finalists

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Beatrice — Adams, almost always the rich kid on the block, and Meridian, the perennial poor boy, will meet here Friday night in the 46th annual Mudecas Conference Class A basketball finals at City Auditorium.

Adams advanced to its fifth Mudecas championship game in the last seven years Thursday night with a 70-41 triumph over Murdock.

Meridian earned its first Class A tourney title shot in the school's eight-year history with a 56-42 conquest of Table Rock in Thursday's other semifinal before a capacity crowd of 1,400.

The Tobias school, which has never won a district basketball game, is primed for what could be the school's most prestigious win.

"We won the Class B part of this tournament two years ago, but we should have been in Class A," Meridian coach Jack Sobotka said after his club notched its eighth win in nine games.

Adams' coach Larry Coorts discounted any possible championship edge, based on tradition.

"Meridian has played good competition," he noted. "When you get this far, it doesn't make any difference who you play. I know they're hungry. But we want this pretty bad, too. A lot of these kids were here last year when Filley beat us in the finals by one."

Adams, the Sunday Journal and Star's tenth-rated Class D team, used balanced scoring to secure its sixth win in seven games.

Tony Boeve, a 6-1, 210-pound senior, hit 18 points to pace the Hornets' 41 per cent field goal effort.

The championship game could be a physical match-up, according to Coorts.

"We can both be physical," he said. "I suppose a lot will depend on who we get for referees. Meridian is a patient ball club. If we get them to run, I think it'll be to our advantage."

Much of Meridian's early-season success has been built on defense, particularly from 6-1 senior forward Mark Rohr.

"We've got a lot of pride in our defense. It's sort of a carry-over from football," Sobotka said.

The Mustangs have used a box-and-one defense twice this season to shut down last year's top two Class D scorers in the state.

In a regular season game, Rohr was chiefly responsible for checking Davenport's Kelly Ficken to 11 points and two rebounds.

In Meridian's lopsided win over Dawson-Verdon in the opening round of the Mudecas tournament, Rohr handcuffed Bill Bruhn, who scored only 11 points and collected only four rebounds.

"Rohr really hustles on defense," Sobotka said, adding "I don't know if we'll be able to try a box-and-one on anyone against Adams."

Coorts isn't expecting the possibility. "No one has tried it since last year against Veerhusen," he said. "I don't think they can afford to let us shoot from outside."

Doug Weishahn, a 6-2 senior, led Meridian's semifinal victory with 22 points. Monte Marschman, a 6-3 senior, added 12.

Nehawka defeated Elk Creek, 49-45, and Filley toppled Elmwood, 38-30, earlier Thursday to advance to the Class B finals of the Mudecas tournament.

Omaha Holy Name's youthful Ramblers may have come of age Thursday night as they nipped Lincoln Pius X, 38-37, at the Thunderbolts' Gym.

"We needed a win like this to build our character and confidence," a happy Holy Name coach Tony Jaworski said. "We only have three seniors on the team, so we're pretty young."

What Jaworski's club may lack in experience, it makes up for in hustle, as the Ramblers refused to fold after falling behind 29-19 late in the third quarter in the low-scoring contest.

After Pius X forward Scott Krause hit his fifth straight field goal attempt to push the 'Bolts to the 10-point bulge, Pius X coach Don Kelley was slapped with a technical and Holy Name started its surge via a full-court press.

"That technical really helped us," Jaworski explained. "We had to change the tempo of the game, and I was able to send our team into the press during the technical without having to call a timeout."

Kelley was a victim of the new bench decorum rule. Following Krause's bucket, the veteran Pius X coach jumped to his feet to applaud his player's basket. Under the strict new rule, a coach is not allowed to leave his seat.

Holy Name forward Denny Dinan hit the free throw on the technical to slice the margin to 29-20, and the Ramblers went into the pressing defense which handed them their sixth win of the year against two losses.

While forcing Pius X into seven turnovers with the press, Holy Name was also aided by some frigid shooting from the Thunderbolts. Pius X was able to only score two field goals the entire fourth quarter, both coming from forward Paul Tlamka, who led all scorers with 16 points.

Both teams suffered some frigid shooting problems most of the evening. Each club hit only two field goals in the first quarter as Holy Name moved to a 5-4 advantage.

The score was knotted at a mere 15-15, at intermission as Pius X shot 29 per cent from the field in the first half and Holy Name could manage only 28 per cent.

Both schools warmed up considerably in the third quarter. Thanks to Krause's six out of eight field goal effort, Pius X shot a healthy 64 per cent while Holy Name stayed close, shooting 50 per cent.

But then both clubs turned as cold as the sub-zero temperatures outside in the fourth quarter, with Holy Name hitting three field goals and two free throws while Tlamka's two buckets were all Pius X could manage.

Thanks to the ragged shooting effort, the game went down to the wire.

Tlamka's fielder with 7-30 left in the final period moved the 'Bolts to a 35-30 advantage, before buckets by guard Dan Hytche and one by center Bill Buchta and a Hytch free throw tied it at 35-35 with 4:19 remaining.

A free throw by Buchta put Holy Name up 36-35 before Tlamka's final basket with 2:25 left gave Pius X its last lead of the night.

Junior center Rick Nilus then drove the lane and hit a layup with 1:27 remaining to give the Ramblers the win as Pius X slipped to 1-5 on the season.

"I thought the kids gave a good effort even though we lost," Kelley said. "We just didn't seem to have the confidence in ourselves when we got in the pressure situation."

The struggling Thunderbolts will have a chance to rebound tonight when they host Lexington at 8 p.m. in the Pius X gymnasium.

Tarkio Downs Wesleyan To Continue Win Streak

Tarkio, Mo. — Mark Ferchau and Larry Manz led the streaking Tarkio Owls to their sixth win in seven games as they downed Nebraska Wesleyan 84-57 here Thursday night.

The Plainsmen, playing without 6-8 forward Mark Summerman and second leading scorer Angelo Lilly, fell behind 26-12 with 6:57 left in the first half but rallied to 28-22 behind the shooting of guards Larry Abel and Bob Otto, who scored four unanswered baskets.

The Owls went into the second half with a 30-22 lead but the Plainsmen kept charging and closed the gap to 32-30 with 16:56 to play.

But the Owls, now 7-3, managed to completely control the rebounds, using a zone defense and outsourced NWU 54-35 in the second half.

Tarkio outrebounded the Plainsmen 48-25 for the game and 26-10 in the second half. Manz led the Owls with 16 caroms and 10 points and Ferchau tallied 19 points hitting eight of 13 field goals.

The Plainsmen, now 1-9, with three straight losses, were paced by the scoring of guard Bob Knollenberg with 16. Otto with 11 and Abel and Veerhusen with seven each.

Tarkio nipped NWU 57-55 in Lincoln in an earlier meeting this season on a last second shot by Manz.

Wesleyan will travel to Bellevue, which beat NWU 75-73 earlier this season on Tuesday.

while Tarkio, with four straight wins, will host Graceland of Iowa.

Lincoln Schools Tempted To Look Ahead

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If you stretch your neck far enough looking ahead, you might not see what's right in front of you.

For Lincoln's four Class A high school basketball teams this weekend, the warning is appropriate.

The temptation is for all four to look ahead to Saturday night games in Omaha against rated Metro Conference teams.

But it would be disastrous. All four face challenging Friday night matchups. If they don't survive them, Saturday night's expected showdowns will lose their luster.

Primary attention Friday night will focus on the intra-city battle between Lincoln High and Southeast at Pershing Auditorium. Ten days ago, the Links scored a 51-40 upset over the then unbeaten Knights.

"Everyone can rest assured now," says Southeast coach Wally McNaught. "Lincoln High is a fine basketball team. It's a reality now. The question marks have been largely removed, even though they are young."

Offensive execution has been the keynote for this week's Southeast practices. "We've got to be less conservative," McNaught says. "We've got to challenge more, penetrate better."

"Then, of course," he adds, "we've got to put the ball in the hole. We went into the Lincoln High game shooting 47 per cent and wound up shooting 31 per cent. That beat us, right there."

Lincoln High coach Aldie Johnson would like to see his team duplicate a 48 per cent shooting performance against the Knights.

But he's more concerned that his defense stays consistent.

"In basketball, offense isn't like Ivory soap," Aldie notes. "It's not pure. It can run from over your head to under your head. Defense is the one thing that can be consistent though."

Two other games are scheduled in Lincoln Friday night. Northeast hosts Hastings in a Trans-Nebraska Conference game at Lincoln High's Johnson Gym and Pius X entertains Lexington in a non-conference contest.

Northeast is hoping shooting complements the hustle of its guard play. So far, the Rockets' starting two guards are shooting 26 per cent and 23 per cent from the field.

The Spartans are the only Capital City team on the road Friday. They play at Kearney in a non-conference game.

If Friday victories materialize, Saturday should be the biggest aggregate challenge of the season for Lincoln teams.

East (4-2) plays at Omaha Burke (5-2) at 122nd and Dodge Sts. Lincoln High (4-2) and Omaha Central (5-2) square off at Norris Junior High at 43rd and Center Sts.

Northeast (4-1) challenges second-rated Omaha Benson (7-1) in a game at Northwest High School at 62nd and Crown Point. Southeast (5-1) and Omaha North (4-3) collide at McMillan Junior High at 38th and Redick Sts.

Lincoln High should be the

"Going into my own personal coaching," Lincoln High coach Johnson says, "Central is the one team that remains a bugaboo, a real thorn in our side."

"It's kind of ironic," he adds. "Creighton Prep has kind of been king of the hill and I think we're up on them since the early 1960's. We've had some real close games with Central, but just haven't gotten the job done on them."

East coach Paul Forch calls the Spartans rivalry against Burke heated. He attributes it to both schools having the same socio-economic status.

Last year Forch recalls, Burke thought they had better talent and our win in Lincoln was too physical. I know they're waiting for us to get up there and we're eager to go.

Southeast coach McNaught believes North "will be one of the most talented teams we play all season. Their leading scorer didn't even play and they still almost beat Central in the Metro Tourney."

McNaught points out the Knights will be facing a starting North front line of 6-9, 6-5 and 6-4 Dave Powell, last year's leading Metro scorer, is the 6-9 Viking pivot.

Friday's Pius X-Lexington game will be telecast by Cablevision on channel 6, starting at 7:30 p.m. with Prep Panorama, featuring an interview with Pius X athletic director Vince Aldrich.

Lincoln Girls Triumph

Northeast and Lincoln High won girls basketball games in the Capital City Thursday night while East had to venture to Beatrice for its girls victory.

The Rockets and Links conquered Eastern I-80 Conference teams Millard and Ralston, Northeast with a 33-23 triumph over Millard and Lincoln High with a 50-17 blitzing of Ralston, while East handled Beatrice away from home, 46-21.

Lincoln High enjoyed a 26-6 point lead through the middle two quarters holding the visiting Rams scoreless the entire third period.

"We got off to kind of a sluggish start that first quarter," Links' coach Joyce Johnson commented about an 8-4 Lincoln lead. "But we started playing a little better in the second quarter and got some help with some steals and fast-break lay ups."

Lincoln High employed a zone defense throughout.

"With the success we were having with the zone, we didn't need to go to the man-to-man," Johnson said. "So we experimented a little with our zone, trying new things."

The Links placed two players in double figures with all-city guard Deb Van Dusen leading the way with 18 points. Junior Robin Hruby added 10 points for Lincoln High as Johnson was able to clear her bench early.

"It was a good chance to get everybody in the game and get some experience," Johnson noted as her team advanced to 7-0 with the triumph.

Northeast coach Hank Willemsen was a little disappointed despite the Rockets' 10-point win over Millard in the Northeast gym before 400 fans.

"We didn't play very well," Willemsen noted. "Maybe it's the long layoff after the tournament (I-80 where Northeast took second place to unbeaten East)."

The most disappointing aspect of the game for Willemsen was the amount of shots taken by Northeast.

"We only took 18 shots the entire first half," Willemsen said, "and 25 the second half. I like to get about 60 shots a game. That's what we've been getting before."

Fortunately for Northeast, its 30% shooting from the field was good enough to advance the Rockets record to 4-1 for the year with its only loss to East.

Junior forward Pam Samuelson led Northeast scoring with 10 points.

Northeast's next game is scheduled for Saturday night at 8 p.m. when Hastings invades the Rockets' home gym.

Lincoln High and East will square off in a battle of unbeaten at Lincoln High next Thursday night.

"We know East has a very fine basketball team," Lincoln High coach Johnson noted. "And we're really looking forward to meeting them."

East's sophomore Anna James and junior Anne Heermann led the Spartans with 13 and 10 points respectively in the tuneup for Thursday's showdown of unbeaten with Lincoln High.

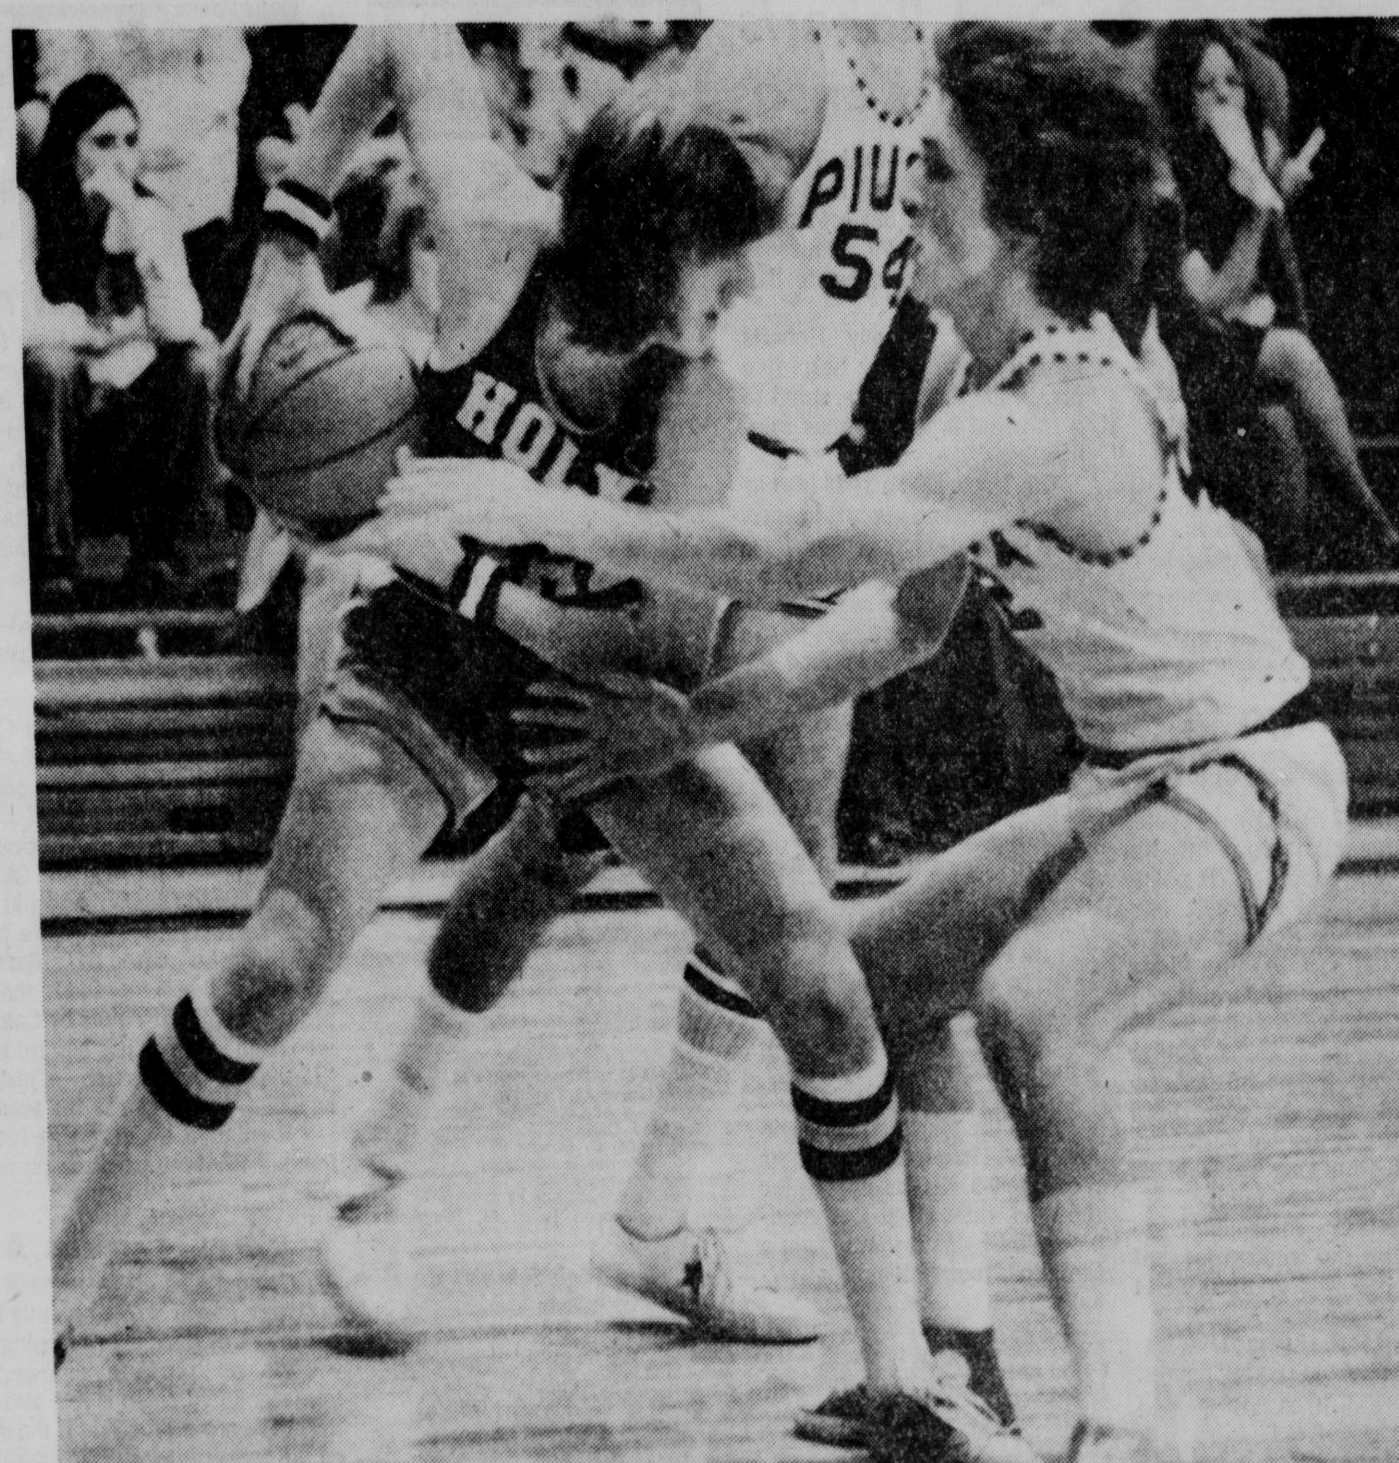

The outcome was never in doubt as East jumped to an early 16-4 first quarter lead and steadily advanced it throughout the contest hiking its record to 4-0.

Gilbert (Not Miller) Leads Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Journeyman Gibby Gilbert fashioned a six-under-par 66 that combined Thursday with a man-made lake to interrupt—at least briefly—Johnny Miller's fantastic string of successes in the Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, who had won both the Tucson and Phoenix Opens the last two years, had a shot at the lead until late in the bright, warm, sunny day when he pumped his tee shot into a lake that borders the right side of the 18th fairway on this long, otherwise dry and arid desert layout.

The errant shot on the final hole led to a horrendous, triple-bogey seven that ruined Miller's round and gave him a score of two-under-par 70—four strokes off the pace—in the first round of play on the 1976 pro tour.

The group at 68 included Phil Rodgers, Curtis Sifford, Frank Conner and Larry Nelson.

Lee Trevino said he "was lucky to shoot par" 72 on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course. He three-putted three of the massive greens, dyed a bright green for the benefit of the national television cameras that will cover the final two days of competition. "It usually takes me four-five tournaments to get my game together," Trevino said with a shrug.

British Open champion Tom

Watson had a shot at the lead but scored a triple-bogey seven on the 15th hole and three-putted the 18th for a 70.

Arnold Palmer struggled and stumbled to 77 that left him little hope of qualifying for the final two rounds of play. He didn't make a single birdie and three-putted four times.

Jack Nicklaus is not competing in this tournament that serves as the kickoff event for the 10-month, 44-tournament circuit.

Adams, Meridian Mudecas Finalists

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

Beatrice — Adams, almost always the rich kid on the block, and Meridian, the perennial poor boy, will meet here Friday night in the 46th annual Mudecas Conference Class A basketball finals at City Auditorium.

Adams advanced to its fifth Mudecas championship game in the last seven years Thursday night with a 70-41 triumph over Murdock.

Meridian earned its first Class A tourney title shot in the school's eight-year history with a 56-42 conquest of Table Rock in Thursday's other semifinal before a capacity crowd of 1,400.

The Tobias school, which has never won a district basketball game, is primed for what could be the school's most prestigious win.

"We won the Class B part of this tournament two years ago, but we should have been in Class A," Meridian coach Jack Sobotka said after his club notched its eighth win in nine games.

Adams' coach Larry Coorts discounted any possible championship edge, based on tradition.

"Meridian has played good competition," he noted. "When you get this far, it doesn't make any difference who you play. I know they're hungry. But we want this pretty bad, too. A lot of these kids were here last year when Filley beat us in the finals by one."

Adams, the Sunday Journal and Star's tenth-rated Class D team, used balanced scoring to secure its sixth win in seven games.

Tony Boeve, a 6-1, 210-pound senior, hit 18 points to pace the Hornets' 41 per cent field goal effort.

Junior guard Jeff Veerhusen added 12 and sophomore Eugene Busbom contributed 11.

The championship game could be a physical match-up, according to Coorts.

"We can both be physical," he said. "I suppose a lot will depend on who we get for referees. Meridian is a patient ball club. If we get them to run, I think it'll be to our advantage."

Much of Meridian's early-season success has been built on defense, particularly from 6-1 senior forward Mark Rohr.

"We've got a lot of pride in our defense. It's sort of a carry-over from football," Sobotka said.

The Mustangs have used a box-and-one defense twice this season to shut down last year's top two Class D scorers in the state.

In a regular season game, Rohr was chiefly responsible for checking Davenport's Kelly Ficken to 11 points and two rebounds.

In Meridian's lopsided win over Dawson-Verdon in the opening round of the Mudecas tournament, Rohr handcuffed Bill Bruhn, who scored only 11 points and collected only four rebounds.

"Rohr really hustles on defense," Sobotka said, adding "I don't know if we'll be able to try a box-and-one on anyone against Adams."

Coorts isn't expecting the possibility. "No one has tried it since last year against Veerhusen," he said. "I don't think they can afford to let us shoot from outside."

Doug Weishahn, a 6-2 senior, led Meridian's semifinal victory with 22 points. Monte Marchman, a 6-3 senior, added 12.

Nehawka defeated Elk Creek, 49-45, and Filley toppled Elmwood, 38-30, earlier Thursday to advance to the Class B finals of the Mudecas tournament.

Tarkio Downs Wesleyan To Continue Win Streak

Tarkio, Mo. — Mark Ferchau and Larry Manz led the streaking Tarkio Owls to their sixth win in seven games as they downed Nebraska Wesleyan 84-57 here Thursday night.

The Plainsmen, playing without 6-8 forward Mark Simmerman and second leading scorer Angelo Lilly, fell behind 26-12 with 6:57 left in the first half but rallied to 28-22 behind the shooting of guards Larry Abel and Bob Otto, who scored four unanswered baskets.

The Owls went into the second half with a 30-22 lead but the Plainsmen kept charging and closed the gap to 32-30 with 16:56 to play.

But the Owls, now 7-3, managed to completely control the rebounds, using a zone defense and outscored NWU 54-35 in the second half.

Tarkio outrebounded the Plainsmen 48-25 for the game and 26-10 in the second half. Manz led the Owls with 16 caroms and 10 points and Ferchau tallied 19 points hitting eight of 13 field goals.

The Plainsmen, now 1-9, with three straight losses, were paced by the scoring of guard Bob Knollenberg with 16, Otto with 11 and Abel and Veerhusen with seven each.

Tarkio nipped NWU 57-55 in Lincoln in an earlier meeting this season on a last second shot by Manz.

Wesleyan will travel to Bellevue, which beat NWU 75-73 earlier this season on Tuesday, while Tarkio, with four straight wins, will host Graceland of Iowa.

Lincoln Schools Tempted To Look Ahead

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

If you stretch your neck far enough looking ahead, you might not see what's right in front of you.

For Lincoln's four Class A high school basketball teams this weekend, the warning is appropriate.

The temptation is for all four to look ahead to Saturday night games in Omaha against rated Metro Conference teams.

But it would be disastrous. All four face challenging Friday night matchups. If they don't survive them, Saturday night's expected showdowns will lose their luster.

Primary attention Friday night will focus on the intra-city battle between Lincoln High and Southeast at Pershing Auditorium. Ten days ago, the Links scored a 51-48 upset over the then unbeaten Knights.

"Everyone can rest assured now," says Southeast coach Wally McNaught. "Lincoln High is a fine basketball team. It's a reality now. The question marks have been largely removed, even though they are young."

Offensive execution has been the keynote for this week's Southeast practices. "We've got to be less conservative," McNaught says. "We've got to challenge more, penetrate better."

"Then, of course," he adds, "we've got to put the ball in the hole. We went into the Lincoln High game shooting 47 per cent and wound up shooting 31 per cent. That beat us, right there."

Lincoln High coach Aldie Johnson would like to see his team duplicate a 48 per cent shooting performance against the Knights.

But he's more concerned that his defense stays consistent.

"In basketball, offense isn't like Ivory soap," Aldie notes. "It's not pure. It can run from over your head to under your head. Defense is the one thing that can be consistent though."

Two other games are scheduled in Lincoln Friday night. Northeast hosts Hastings in a Trans-Nebaska Conference game at Lincoln High's Johnson Gym and Pius X entertains Lexington in a non-conference contest.

Northeast is hoping shooting complements the hustle of its guard play. So far, the Rockets' starting two guards are shooting 26 per cent and 23 per cent from the field.

But juniors Joe Prai and Doug Berka showed signs of breaking out of their slumps last week in Northeast's holiday tournament championship win over East.

The Spartans are the only Capital City team on the road Friday. They play at Kearney in a non-conference game.

If Friday victories materialize, Saturday should be the biggest aggregate challenge of the season for Lincoln teams.

East (4-2) plays at Omaha Burke (5-2) at 122nd and Dodge Sts. Lincoln High (4-2) and Omaha Central (5-2) square off at Norris Junior High at 43rd and Center Sts.

Northeast (4-1) challenges second-rated Omaha Benson (7-1) in a game at Northwest High School at 82nd and Crown Point. Southeast (5-1) and Omaha North (4-3) collide at McMillan Junior High at 38th and Redick Sts.

Lincoln High should be the hungeriest team for a Saturday night victory. The Links haven't beaten Central the past 14 years. Their last triumph was 51-50 in 1961.

"Going into my own personal coaching," Lincoln High coach Johnson says, "Central is the one team that remains a bugaboo, a real thorn in our side."

"It's kind of ironic," he adds. "Creighton Prep has kind of been king of the hill and I think we're up on them since the early 1960's. We've had some real close games with Central, but just haven't gotten the job done on them."

East coach Paul Forch calls the Spartans' rivalry against Burke "heated." He attributes it "to both schools having the same socio-economic status."

Last year, Forch recalls, "Burke thought they had better talent and our win in Lincoln was too physical. I know they're waiting for us to get up there and we're eager to go."

Southeast coach McNaught believes North "will be one of the most talented teams we play all season. Their leading scorer didn't even play and they still almost beat Central in the Metro Tourney."

McNaught points out the Knights will be facing a starting North front line of 6-9, 6-5 and 6-4. Dave Powell, last year's leading Metro scorer, is the 6-9 Viking pivot.

Friday's Pius X-Lexington game will be telecast by Cablevision on channel 6, starting at 7:30 p.m. with Prep Panorama, featuring an interview with Pius X athletic director Vince Aldrich.

Olympics Face 'Drug' Problem

MONTREAL (AP) — The drug problem may pose a special headache at the Olympic Games in Montreal next summer unless the Organizing Committee here reaches some sort of an accord with the International Olympic Committee.

The local committee has given its approval to a cold-lighting drug which has ingredients on the banned list of the IOC. It is Coricidin D, which contains phenylephrine.

Not only has the drug, a product of Schering Corp., been given a green light for general use by athletes, officials and visitors but it is flagrantly advertised on billboards in this Olympic city.

Coupled with the Olympic symbol of five colored rings, the advertisements carry the words: "Official supplier to the 1976 Olympic Games."

"It is an incredible situation," said Dr. Ted Percy, chief medical officer of the Canadian Olympic Association.

However, Bill Shuler, medical spokesman for the Organizing Committee, insisted that the Coricidin advertisements should pose no serious problem.

"We will be treating the whole Olympic family at the Games—officials, VIPs, everybody," he said. "Doctors treating athletes have to be very selective in what they prescribe."

The IOC has been very strict about the use of drugs in recent years and has had no hesitation about suspending athletes with any sort of drug found in their systems in post-competition tests.

One of the most famous cases was that of Rick Demont, a California youth who won the Olympic gold medal in the 400 meters freestyle swimming race in the 1972 Games at Munich only to have the victory and medal taken away when a drug showed up in his test.

An asthmatic victim, Demont had not been sufficiently warned by his team doctors about taking medication before his race. Other athletes—cyclists, particularly, but some track and swimming athletes—have been banned because of drugs.

phenylbutazone in his system from a drug called Butazolidin. It is a drug that is used to treat gout.

As a result of the test, Forward Pass, the second place horse, was declared the winner. The owner of Dancer's Image challenged the decision in court but to no avail.

Drug Endorsement To Help Wenzel

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — "God, that's ridiculous," said middle distance runner Joan Wenzel Thursday when she learned a cold pill containing a drug that got her banned from competition has been endorsed by the Olympic Organizing Committee.

"But you know, I have mixed emotions because this decision, stupid as it is, is bound to help my appeal against the ban and I could still make the Olympics."

Mrs. Wenzel, a part-time student at the University of Waterloo, had to give back the bronze medal she won in the 800 meters in the Pan-American Games in Mexico after a trace of the drug turned up in a post-race urine test. She later was given a life suspension although it is under appeal.

A report from Montreal says Coricidin D, an antihistamine pill produced by Schering Corp., has been endorsed by the organizing committee although it contains a drug banned by the International Olympic Committee because it is considered a stimulant.

The cold pill taken inadvertently by Mrs. Wenzel was Dimetapp but it contains the same drug — a phenylephrine compound — that is in Coricidin D.

"This was a ridiculous affair from the start but as the plot thickens it is turning into a farce," said Mrs. Wenzel who has said she took the pill by mistake in Mexico because it was mixed in with vitamin and iron tablets.

Mrs. Wenzel said she kept in top shape since the life suspension was announced in October and has just returned from a two-week training stint in Florida.

"I'm as fit as I've ever been and if that appeal is successful before the International Amateur Athletic Federation in London on April 22 I believe I'll be on the Olympic team for sure. After all I'm the reigning Canadian champion."

"If they now are endorsing the compound it can only help my case, don't you think?"

Christen's 300 Game Product Of Dedication

By BOB MOYER

Last year Clancy Christen, a moderately successful one-a-week bowler, decided he would really give the sport a try and see what he could do.

Tuesday night at Plaza Christen achieved perfection — a 300 game.

Christen, a left-hander, becomes the fourth bowler and the first southpaw to get a 300 in fall leagues.

Although Christen's 300, like its predecessors was bowled at Plaza, he can justifiably take some added pride in the difference between his game and the first three.

The other 300s were all recorded in the three-man team Sunday morning league which often bowls on advantageous lane conditions.

While it is no detraction from the first three 300s this fall, Christen accomplished his game on a five-man team in a late league, where lane conditions are often much less advantageous.

It's special to me getting it in a late league and on a five-man team," said Christen. "On Sunday morning where you bowl with just three guys it seems like you're up all the time and I think that makes it easier to be consistent."

Until two years ago, however, Christen contented himself with bowling one-a-week.

"I was playing a lot of basketball during the winter," he said. "I finally decided I would concentrate on bowling and either get better or give it up."

Christen got better, recording a high average of 198 last fall and this year is carrying 196 in two leagues and 195 in a third.

Actually Christen was bowling his second three-game set of the night when he got his 300.

Bowling in the early league, Clancy had a 605 series. But then in the first game of the second set he got his 12 strikes in a row and then for good measure added three more before finally missing.

"I think I got more relaxed in the second set," said Christen. "I slowed my delivery down quite a bit and started to carry. In the first set I was hitting the pocket a lot but leaving 7 and 10 pins."

Christen said he wasn't especially nervous during the game.

"Everybody told me my knees would start to buckle towards the end," Christen said. "But, to be truthful, I really wasn't that nervous. I thought all of my shots were good shots until the last ball. I thought I would leave a 7-pin on that shot, but it carried too."

Christen said he began the fall year in a terrible slump.

"I was having trouble shooting 170s and 180s," he said. "Then about six or seven weeks ago, I had a complete turnaround and started bowling well."

Christen had his personal best series of 743 just before Christmas and had 698 and 694 series two weeks ago.

"I've been gaining a lot of confidence by bowling better," said Christen. "I've come close to a 300 before and my friends were kidding me that I was about due, but I still couldn't believe it when I did it."

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10
Day Games

AUBURN 73, Alabama 73—Tigers jammed Bama middle on defense year ago to win 73-70 and will probably employ same strategy again.
E. CAROLINA 79, Furman 76—Recent Southern Conference powers are floundering early.
ILLINOIS 66, Northwestern 61—Pitts pair of extremely well-coached teams who have rediscovered winning habit.

Indiana 81, MICHIGAN 76—Figures to be Hoosiers' toughest conference test. Ohio St. scare notwithstanding, shot 62% to win here year ago.
Maryland 81, WAKE FOREST 85 (Greensboro, N.C.)—Terps overcame 7-pi half deficit to win at Wake 85-78 yr. ago.
MICH ST 78, Ohio St 70—Both lower-echelon teams in Big 10 estimates.

NAVY 63, Air Force 61—Will probably be very deliberate and cautious game.
N. Carolina 73, VIRGINIA 70—Va's 65-62 win year ago was 1st here vs. Carolina since '66. Virginia may be able to stay with Tars inside.
NOTRE DAME 83, Manhattan 69—Visitors coming off 12-day layoff.

OHIO U 75, Bowling Green 71—Little to choose between two.
OREGON ST 80, UCLA 80—Not convinced Uclans solved all ?? despite impressive Notre Dame victory.

PROVIDENCE 78, Louisville 73 (NATIONAL TV)—Similar in many ways. Fine talent well coached but somewhat immature & erratic. Witness last Saturday's results.
Providence got drubbed at DePaul in one of worst games veteran Friar observers had ever seen a Gavitt team play. However, this is virtually same squad that reached NIT finals year ago. Strother hasn't filled the playmaking role of scoring G. Has set hasn't been shooting well. Louisville pretty much homebodies. This year was upset by West Texas St.

PURDUE 94, Wisconsin 81—Badgers didn't win Big 10 game on road all last season. Purdue boasts good overall balanced scoring.

ST LOUIS 71, Oklahoma 63—Both young & struggling. St. Louis star Mc Kinney most likely to succeed.

SMU 85, Texas 71—Ponies destroyed Texas on boards 55-37 in 17-point Dallas victory year ago.

TEXAS TECH 80, Texas Christian 63—Frogs have not beaten Tech since Bullock arrived last 6 straight.

UN Las Vegas 105, IOWA ST 90—If ever a team was made to order for nation's highest scores, it has to be Trukey's disorganized run-and-gunners at ISU. Cyclones shooting only 40%.

VANDY 78, Georgia 71—Bulldogs have never beaten Ft. Troop having lost 6 in row. Skinner having problem with Commodore seniors.

Night Games

ARIZ ST 82, Long Beach St 58—Devils lost heart of last year's outstanding team but won't need any transplant to handle mediocre foe.

ARIZONA 87, Detroit 76—Visiting Detroiters find ex-native Snowden packs too much firepower.

BYU 82, Utah St 76—Injury loss of 6-8 Santos has to hurt Aggies.

CALIFORNIA 77, Wash St 67—After shaky start, Edwards has ironed out wrinkles at Cal. Bear zone gave WSU trouble here year ago.

Clemson 83, CITADEL 66—Despite non-league game sandwiched between N. Car & Duke, no reason Clemson can't win name score.

DE PAUL 87, Loyola-Chi 70—DePaul living up to expectations of year ago. Norwood & Corzine pace talented and cohesive squad.

DRAKE 78, N. Mex St 68—NMS not physical & is guard oriented. MVC's leading scorer & rebounder Harris decline factor in Drake win.

Florida State 77, JACKSONVILLE 66—About only thing that can be said about JV is that it's tall.

FLORIDA 73, Miss St 66—Daws very pleased with young and extremely quick MSU squad that upset Kentucky.

GEO WASH 79, Pittsburgh 67—GW potentially fine club.

HOUSTON 88, Rice 69—Bluebonnets title good achievement by Houston.

KANS ST 87, Tulane 71—Greenies upset K State 71-57 year ago in New Orleans. Court-wise, Catx will neutralize Tulane's inside tandem of Cummings & Hicks. And high scoring backline of Williams & Evans totally outpaces their matchups.

KENTUCKY 82, Tennessee 77—Bad blood from year ago when Ky won 88-82 at Lexington. Cats lct bigger & more physical.

LA SALLE 84, Syracuse 74—Syracuse's 87-83 overtime win here year ago knocked LaSalle out of NCAA tournament.

LSU 85, Mississippi 74—Tigers hope to regain sharpness they had prior to semester break. Ole Miss came good scored.

Marquette 75, OKLA CITY 60—OCCU looks pathetic.

MINN 79, Iowa 73—Iowa's No 1 upset & Olson's coaching.

Penn 70, HARVARD 65—Harvard's disappointment early may settle down.

St John's 73, TEMPLE 60—Redmen free game Temple slowdown in Molli day festival 2 weeks ago, winning 67-59 after trailing by 4 at half.

S. Calif 78, OREGON 75—Apparent? Harter's career like to be legend? converted Ducks 210 champs. Boyd has never lost to Harter at Ore.

S. ILL 88, Mich St 66—MVC preaches to be WSU may be coming together now after shaky start. SIU rather young & small.

Texas A&M 77, BAYLOR 74—Teh Aggie's open defense of SWC crown.

TULSA 75, Bradley 73—Bradley upset pair from Tulsa year ago.

UTEX El Paso 86, COLO ST 60—Meters won here year ago 86-57 and virtually same squad returns to take as one of WAC's top 2.

Virginia Tech 81, MEMPH ST 78—Excellent talent on both benches.

Washington 74, STANFORD 64—No thing good about undisciplined Mustangs are but regardless they shape up 100 physical for talented Shy Cards.

W. Virginia 78, DAVIDSON 70—Mountie 3-guard offense packs good fire power. Overall fairly decent team when not outmanned inside.

WYO 76, N. Mex 72—Lobos don't seem to have the maturity to win.

Williamson Boosts Nebraska To Third

Maryville, Mo. — Darcy Williamson scored 27 points to lead the University of Nebraska women's basketball team to a 74-64 win over Southeast Missouri State and third place Thursday in the Northwest Missouri State Holiday Tournament.

In the championship game, Northwest Missouri State, a 65-62 winner over Nebraska in the first round, toppled Kansas 71-50 behind the 16-point and 16-rebound effort of Trish Van Oostree.

Kathy Hawkins scored 11 points for Nebraska while Deb Lee and Jan Zink added 10 points each. Zink led the NU rebounders with 16 caroms.

Joanie French led NW Missouri State with 14 points. Nebraska, now 6-3, staked a 37-31 halftime lead and scored another 37 points in the second half despite foul trouble that sent Hawkins, Williamson and Marta Pritchard with five fouls each.

Nebraska's second second half rally against NW Missouri State in the first round was cut short by fouls when Pritchard and Hawkins fouled out.

SW Missouri State managed only 18 of 32 free throws though, while Nebraska hit 12 of 20.

Nebraska returns to host UNO Jan 14 in the Coliseum at 7:30 p.m.

Huskers' Cox Ranks Third

Mission, Kan. (UPI) — Nebraska center Larry Cox ranks third nationally in field goal percentage in the latest statistics released by the NCAA.

The 6-6 senior has hit 61 of 87 field goal attempts for 70.1 percent.

Olympics Face 'Drug' Problem

MONTREAL (AP) — The drug problem may pose a special headache at the Olympic Games in Montreal next summer unless the Organizing Committee here reaches some sort of an accord with the International Olympic Committee.

The local committee has given its approval to a cold-fighting drug which has ingredients on the banned list of the IOC. It is Coricidin D, which contains phenylephrine.

Not only has the drug, a product of Schering Corp., been given a green light for general use by athletes, officials and visitors but it is flagrantly advertised on billboards in this Olympic city.

Coupled with the Olympic symbol of five colored rings, the advertisements carry the words: "Official supplier to the 1976 Olympic Games."

"It is an incredible situation," said Dr. Ted Percy, chief medical officer of the Canadian Olympic Association.

However, Bill Shuler, medical spokesman for the Organizing Committee, insisted that the Coricidin advertisements should pose no serious problem.

"We will be treating the whole Olympic family at the Games—officials, VIPs, everybody," he said. "Doctors treating athletes have to be very selective in what they prescribe."

The IOC has been very strict about the use of drugs in recent years and has had no hesitation about suspending athletes with any sort of drug found in their systems in post-competition tests.

One of the most famous cases was that of Rick Demont, a California youth who won the Olympic gold medal in the 400 meters freestyle swimming race in the 1972 Games at Munich only to have the victory and medal taken away when a drug showed up in his test.

An asthmatic victim, Demont had not been sufficiently warned by his team doctors about taking medication before his race. Other athletes—cyclists, particularly, but some track and swimming athletes—have been banned because of drugs.

A drug once affected the outcome of the Kentucky Derby. After the 1968 running of the classic, Dancer's Image, the winner, was found to have phenylbutazone in his system from a drug called Butezolidin. It is a drug that is used to treat

As a result of the test, Forward Pass, the second place horse, was declared the winner. The owner of Dancer's Image challenged the decision in court but to no avail.

Drug Endorsement To Help Wenzel

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — "God, that's ridiculous," said middle distance runner Joan Wenzel Thursday when she learned a cold pill containing a drug that got her banned from competition has been endorsed by the Olympic Organizing Committee.

"But you know, I have mixed emotions because this decision, stupid as it is, is bound to help my appeal against the ban and I could still make the Olympics."

Mrs. Wenzel, a part-time student at the University of Waterloo, had to give back the bronze medal she won in the 800 meters in the Pan-American Games in Mexico after a trace of the drug turned up in a post-race urine test. She later was given a life suspension although it is under appeal.

A report from Montreal says Coricidin D, an antihistamine pill produced by Schering Corp., has been endorsed by the organizing committee although it contains a drug banned by the International Olympic Committee because it is considered a stimulant.

The cold pill taken inadvertently by Mrs. Wenzel was Dimetapp but it contains the same drug — a phenylephrine compound — that is in Coricidin D.

"This was a ridiculous affair from the start but as the plot thickens it is turning into a farce," said Mrs. Wenzel, who has said she took the pill by mistake in Mexico because it was mixed in with vitamin and iron tablets.

Mrs. Wenzel said she has kept in top shape since the life suspension was announced in October and has just returned from a two-week training stint in Florida.

"I'm as fit as I've ever been and if that appeal is successful before the International Amateur Athletic Federation in London on April 22 I believe I'll be on the Olympic team for sure. After all, I'm the reigning Canadian champion."

"If they now are endorsing the compound it can only help my case, don't you think?"

Christen's 300 Game Product Of Dedication

By BOB MOYER

Last year Clancy Christen, a moderately successful once-a-week bowler, decided he would really give the sport a try and see what he could do.

Tuesday night at Plaza Christen achieved perfection — a 300 game.

Christen, a left-hander, becomes the fourth bowler and the first southpaw to get a 300 in fall leagues.

Although Christen's 300, like its predecessors was bowled at Plaza, he can justifiably take some added pride in the difference between his game and the first three.

The other 300s were all recorded in the three-man team Sunday morning, a league which often bowls on advantageous lane conditions.

While it is no detraction from the first three 300s this fall, Christen accomplished his game on a five-man team in a late league, where lane conditions are often much less advantageous.

"It's special to me getting it in a late league and on a five-man team," said Christen. "On Sunday morning where you bowl with just three guys, it seems like you're up all the time and I think that makes it easier to be consistent."

Until two years ago, however, Christen contented himself with bowling once-a-week.

"I was playing a lot of basketball during the winter," he said. "I finally decided I would concentrate on bowling and either get better or give it up."

Christen got better, recording a high average of 198 last fall and this year is carrying 196 in two leagues and 195 in a third.

Actually, Christen was bowling his second three-game set of the night when he got his 300.

Bowling in the early league, Clancy had a 605 series. But then in the first game of the second set he got his 12 strikes in-a-row and then for good measure added three more before finally missing.

"I think I got more relaxed in the second set," said Christen. "I slowed my delivery down quite a bit and started to carry. In the first set I was hitting the pocket a lot but leaving 7 and 10 pins."

Christen said he wasn't especially nervous during the game.

Williamson Boosts Nebraska To Third

Maryville, Mo. — Darcy Williamson scored 27 points to lead the University of Nebraska women's basketball team to a 74-64 win over Southeast Missouri State and third place Thursday in the Northwest Missouri State Holiday Tournament.

In the championship game, Northwest Missouri State, a 65-62 winner over Nebraska in the first round, topped Kansas 71-50 behind the 16-point and 16-rebound effort of Trish Van Oosbree.

Kathy Hawkins scored 11 points for Nebraska while Deb Lee and Jan Zink added 10 points each. Zink led the NU rebounders with 16 caroms.

Joanie French led NW Missouri State with 14 points. Nebraska, now 6-3, staked a 37-31 halftime lead and scored another 37 points in the second half despite foul trouble that sent Hawkins, Williamson and Marta Pritchard with five fouls each.

Nebraska's second second half rally against NW Missouri State in the first round was cut short by fouls when Pritchard and Hawkins fouled out.

SW Missouri State managed only 11 of 32 free throws though, while Nebraska hit 12 of 20. Nebraska returns to host ONU Jan. 14 in the Coliseum at 7:30 p.m.

Trial To Revolve Around Issue Of Simants' Sanity

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
North Platte — Accused of shooting to death six persons, raping a 10-year-old girl and attempting the same act on her grandmother, Erwin Charles Simants of Sutherland was characterized here Thursday by a prosecutor as "a sane man who knew precisely what he was doing."

His defense attorneys, on the other hand, labeled him a "grossly retarded" alcoholic who was not in control of his faculties on the Oct. 18 date of the multiple crimes with which he is charged.

Opening statements in Lincoln County District Court before Judge Hugh Stuart Thursday afternoon clearly spelled out that the paramount issue in the case will be the 30-year-old defendant's sanity. It was also apparent that the mass murder trial will be among Nebraska's most sensational of recent years.

The trial has gained nationwide attention because of a "gag" order on pretrial coverage which was issued by Judge Stuart.

"Gag" Order Dropped
The "gag" was dropped Thursday after the jury was sworn.

With the 12-member jury and two alternates chosen by mid-afternoon, the second aspect of the trial began with a re-arraignment for Simants. He changed his previous pleas of innocent to "not guilty by reason of insanity" on each of six counts.

Then Chief Deputy Prosecutor Marvin Holscher previewed the state's evidence, which he said will include "some so shocking it may be unbelievable." Noting that approximately 70 witnesses will be called by the prosecution alone, he added that "the evidence will be overwhelming."

In a much shorter statement later, Assistant Public Defender Leonard Vyhnales said his evidence will show that Simants is morose and "functions at the level of about an 8-year-old boy." He gave no indication of trying to prove that the defendant did not commit the crimes.

"Abnormal Mind?"
He said acts described by the prosecution had to be of "the deepest, darkest, most twisted part of a man's mind... they had to come from an abnormal mind," Simants, he continued, "is entitled to a fair trial on his condition as of Oct. 18, 1975."

In querying potential jurors, both the state and defense had emphasized three criteria of legal insanity. They said such a person (1) has no understanding of what he is doing, (2) doesn't distinguish between right and wrong relative to the acts in question, and (3) doesn't know such acts are wrong and likely to bring punishment.

Holscher said evidence will show that Simants first shot 10-year-old Florence Kellie when she resisted his sexual advances.

"After this, he completed his act. He covered her up. About that time Henry (the grandfather) walked in the door... it appeared he was shot in the back of the head without even knowing the defendant was there," the attorney stated.

The girl's body was found on the bed, with all clothing removed except a T-shirt, the attorney said. Kellie was found on the floor nearby, while the bodies of the other four victims were in the living room. It appeared the grandfather had been dragged into the bedroom.

Holscher said Florence's body was bruised and that there were several indications of assault in the vaginal area. The clothing of Mrs. Kellie, 57, also showed signs that "there had been an attempt to commit a sexual assault."

The attorney said that while there was no sexual assault on 7-year-old Deanna Kellie, "there were bruises on her thigh and around the vulva."

Holscher said various witnesses will be called to show that all six family members died of wounds from a .22 caliber rifle he said Simants carried into the house from his own quarters next door.

Testimony from Simants' 13-year-old nephew, Butch Boggs, with whose family the defendant was staying, will be introduced concerning the rifle, he continued. Holscher said the boy will also testify that Simants told him "I just killed the Kellies."

The attorney said the Kellies' 32-year-old son, David, was still breathing when the ambulance arrived, but died soon after at a North Platte hospital. Also dead at the scene was the sixth victim, David's five-year-old son, Daniel.

"We will show that as hideous as this crime is, the defendant was sane," the attorney stated.

Defense attorney Vyhnales said part of the defense will be to show that Simants was an alcoholic. He also said "One expert will refer to the defendant as a moron."

"That's not very kind but this is not a very kind case," the attorney stated.

In his instructions to the jury, Stuart explained that Simants is charged both with pre-meditated murder and murder in the perpetration of or attempt to perpetrate a first degree sexual assault. Both are first degree murder counts.

Truck Crash Fatal To Lincoln Man

One Lincoln man was killed and another seriously injured Thursday night when their pickup sheared a light pole on an access road to the Lincoln Municipal Airport. Firemen worked for 30 minutes to free the injured man, the driver, from the vehicle. The vehicle came to rest on the lamp assembly of the downed pole and Lincoln Electric System crews had to turn off the power to the pole before the dead man could be removed. Police said the pickup apparently was southbound when it went out of control and hit the pole. Both men are employees of the airport authority, they said. Name of the victim is being withheld pending notification of relatives, police said. (Staff Photo by Harald Dreimanis)

No Change Of Venue Debate Expected Now

A broadening of limitations on where trials can be moved will not arise during the current legislative session but may in next year's session.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said a pending bill for revising state criminal laws does not deal with changes of venue in trials.

The subject of change of venue has arisen in the North Platte murder trial of Erwin Charles Simants, where press coverage has been limited and a change of venue denied. A trial can be moved if it is shown the accused cannot be tried before an impartial jury.

Nebraska law limits a change of venue in the Simants trial to neighboring counties. In other states, such as Iowa, a trial can be moved wherever deemed fit.

News media attorneys have suggested a change of venue would erase any problem Simants might have in finding an impartial jury.

Luedtke, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said the bill may be introduced in the 1977 Legislature to recodify criminal procedure statutes, possibly including gag orders and changes of venue.

Re-Study Of Proposed Angus Dam Asked

Fairbury — Further study and evaluation of the proposed Angus Dam has been requested by the Little Blue Natural Resources District directors. Bureau of Reclamation officials have studied the project, but indicated the need of a re-evaluation. Albert Schoenrock, spokesman for the local group, emphasized the dam is needed because of the area's lowering water table and increased irrigation interest.

Plans Told For $8 Million Rail Span

Nebraska City (AP) — The Burlington Northern Railroad central office in Denver announced Thursday the construction of an estimated $8 million railroad bridge to span the Missouri River at Rulo, Neb. The project, aimed at completion by late 1977, will replace the present crossing, which has been in tact for nearly 100 years. Public relations director Jim Hagle said the new steel structure will be nearly 200 feet shorter than the present one, due to a new design on the portions of the bridge adjoining the river bank.

Museum Attendance Up 2.6%

Grand Island (UPI) — The Stuhr Museum recorded a 2.6% increase in attendance during 1975 and a museum membership reached an all-time high of 1,867, according to Jack Learned, executive director of the museum. He said attendance during 1975 totalled 63,520, including 35,728 visitors between Memorial Day and Labor Day when the museum's outdoor exhibits are open. School tours were up 56% over 1974.

Columbus Post Goes To Castner

Columbus (AP) — Columbus Mayor Fred Gerber has announced the appointment of C. Lloyd Castner as city administrator for Columbus. At the present time, Castner, 40, is serving a similar post at Bellevue. He will take over the job March 1 at a salary of $21,500 a year.

EPA Grant Goes To Omaha

Washington (AP) — Omaha will receive a $2.2 million grant from the Environmental Protection Agency for improvements to the city's water system, according to a spokesman for Rep. John Y. McCollister.

Eight-Room Farm Home Destroyed

Tilden — Battling flames in zero degree weather, Tilden volunteer firemen were unable to save the eight-room house on the Levin Rutjens farm. At one time the blaze was almost under control when a shortage of water hampered the firemen. Officials believe the fire started in the attic. The house completely destroyed, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rutjens. There were no injuries.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty states and the District of Columbia were notified
Thursday that thousands of unemployed workers are no longer eligible for extended jobless benefits because of an improving job picture.

Under a 1974 law, workers can receive up to 26 weeks of additional federal benefits once they have exhausted their first 39 weeks of aid under federal-state programs. However, the availability of the additional 26 weeks of funds is tied to a formula based on the insured unemployment rate in each state.

Workers currently receiving these benefits will continue to draw their checks for up to 13 weeks, but new workers no longer will be added to the "supplemental" rolls.

The states affected are Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Virginia,
Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Japan, Iran Reach Trading Agreement

Tehran (AP) — Iran and Japan agreed to an exchange of goods worth $6.8 billion a year and broke a long-standing impasse in plans for construction of a joint petrochemical plant and oil refinery in Iran.

The deal calls for trade to reach $15 billion a year by 1980.

Nebraska's Unemployed Lose Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty states and the District of Columbia were notified Thursday that thousands of unemployed workers are no longer eligible for extended jobless benefits because of an improving job picture.

Under a 1974 law, workers can receive up to 26 weeks of additional federal benefits once they have exhausted their first 39 weeks of aid under federal-state programs. However, the availability of the additional 26 weeks of funds is tied to a formula based on the insured unemployment rate in each state. Workers currently receiving these benefits will continue to draw their checks for up to 13 weeks, but new workers no longer will be added to the "supplemental" rolls.

The states affected are Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Japan, Iran Reach Trading Agreement

Tehran (AP) — Iran and Japan agreed to an exchange of goods worth $6.8 billion a year and broke a long-standing impasse in plans for construction of a joint petrochemical plant and oil refinery in Iran.

The deal calls for trade to reach $15 billion a year by 1980.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

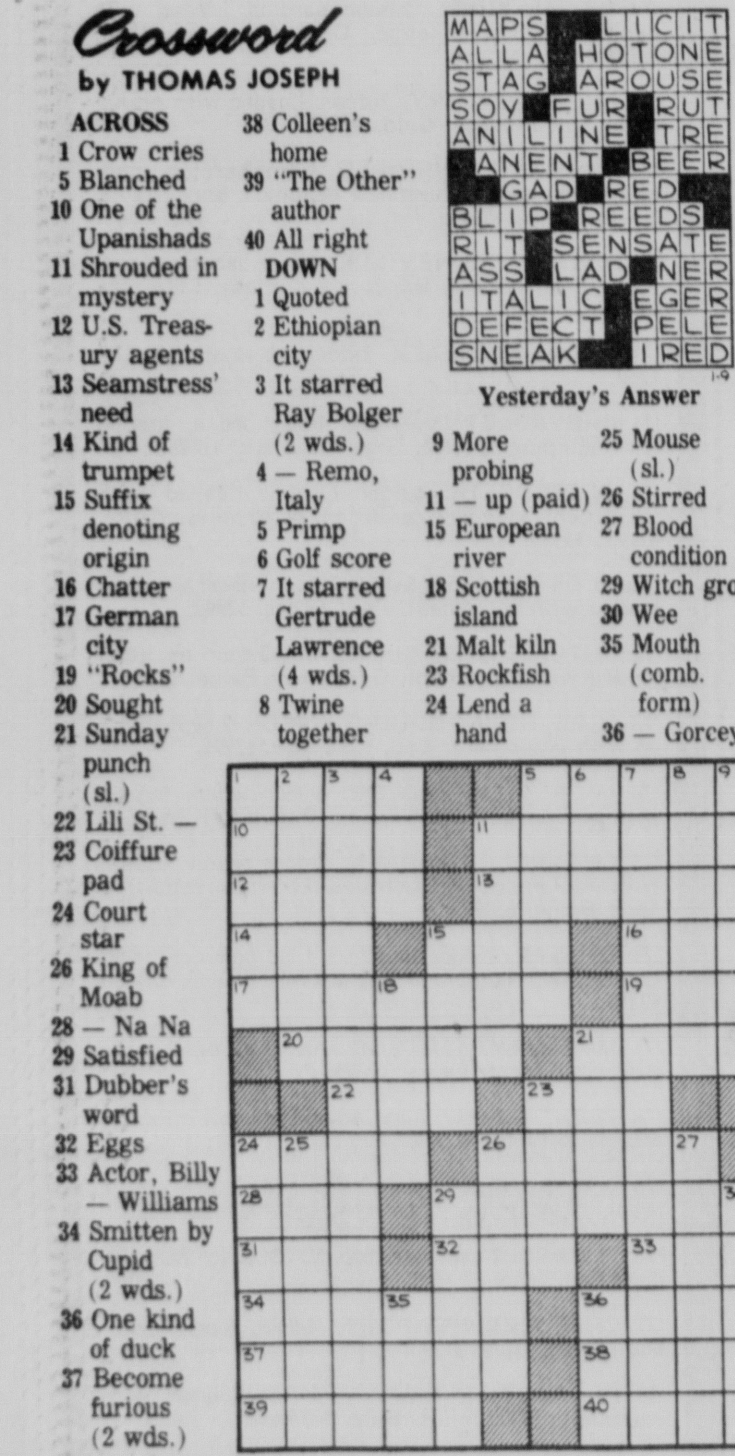

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Friday, January 9, 1976

Scorpio can be expert at fighting; the native becomes familiar with "tricks of the trade." Scorpio is a marvelous ally, a dangerous foe. But I have noted, over the years, that Scorpio is a gracious winner. Once the battle is finished, the native is willing to lend a helping hand, more so than most persons. Scorpio can have more legal entanglements than average, strong feelings, passionate, intense, falls in love with Capricorn, makes money with Sagittarius, dreams about Libra persons, has differences with Leo but the relationship can be fruitful. How is your Scorpio?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What appears an obstacle could really be a "low hurdle." You rebound, circumstances will eventually favor your efforts. Accent on public relations, partnership, ability to win others to your point of view. There is delay, but progress continues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be analytical — find reasons why — reject superficial arguments, explanations. Accent on service, special tasks, recent health-work-recreation resolutions. Gemini, Virgo persons could be in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Property values, possible sales and purchases could be discussed. See situation as it really exists, not merely as you would like it to be. Pisces, Virgo and Libra individuals could be in picture. You are granted opportunity to improve procedures, techniques.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relative keeps promise — there could be cause for celebration. Money picture will be brighter — obstacle to cash flow is removed. Capricorn, Cancer could figure prominently. Messages, calls, short journeys are involved during this busy time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain hint from Aquarius message. You get rid of losing proposition. Accent on income potential — which is better than might be apparent on surface. You are rewarded for past efforts and promise for future is substantial.

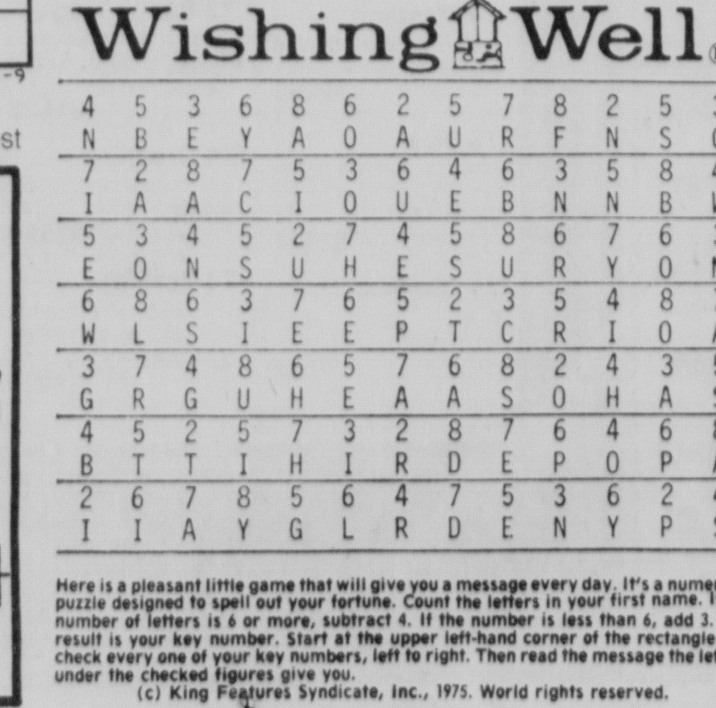

IF JAN. 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY home, domestic situation is emphasized this year — February and November could be your most significant months. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You will get emotional bearings following recent, swift changes. You are artistic, sensitive, loyal and temperamental.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Excellent lunar position, Jupiter conjunction, accents stimulation of learning process. You create, write, make contacts which help insure future publication and other results. Affair of heart also is in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical matters, usually unpleasant, become intriguing. You're able now to clear away red tape, to obtain special services, to make favorable financial arrangement.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
